CARLOW.

The Assizes for the County of Carlow commenced at Carlow, on Monday 29th July, before the Right Hon. Lord Norbury, Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and Robert Day, Esq. second Justice of his Majesty's Court of King's Bench.

Lord Norbury charged the Grand Inquest, on which several new Members appeared. His Lordship expatiated on the happy and peaceable situation of the county, and the very few offences stated in the Calendar. There was every reason, he said, from appearance, to expect, in addition to peace and good order, the blessing of plenty. The poor in that case would have nothing to complain of, and the rich he hoped would remain in their own county, enjoying the fruits raised for them by the industry of the tenants, and giving to them that protection, to which their good conduct entitled them.

Some women were tried for shop-lifting, and convicted, as was one woman on the vagrant act. This respectable lady exhibited a child in the dock, in her arms, decorated with an orange cockade. The Jury, however, who found her guilty, were not taken in by this display of false colours.

Mr. Patrick Kelly, miller, on the lands of Clanscanny, the same person who at the last Assize prosecuted to conviction, Walter Kavanagh, Esq. of Borris, was arraigned on an indictment for a misdemeanour, in attempting to seduce—Fitzgerald, of Carlow, Shop-keeper, to take an illegal and seditious oath.

The Clerk of the Crown asked him was he ready for his trial, he answered yes, on which Mr. M'Mahon, who appeared as Agent for the prosecution, entered an affidavit for the purpose of postponing the trial. This affidavit was made by the wife of the Prosecutor, and stated, that her husband had left Carlow on account of debt—that he was a hundred miles off, and that she believed he would have come in to prosecute, had he known that the Court would in that case have protected him from arrest, and that she believed he would come in at the next Assize.

Mr. Mac Nally observed that this was a most extraordinary affidavit. It appeared to have been made by a woman who could not write her name, yet it was stated with technical nicety that evidently warranted the conclusion of its being bona fide, the truth and the facts it asserted came in a most suspicious and unquestionable shape. It was extraordinary that no other person could be got fit Carlow to swear to those facts, and it was merely grounded on hearsay; those facts, and it was merely grounded on hearsay. He would however accede to the prayer of this affidavit.

Mr. Kelly, without a full, very full investigation, acquitted. The indictment impeached his loyalty. It accused him of a most atrocious offence, from which he wished to be cleared, not upon the absence or angles of the Prosecutor, but upon the full establishment of his innocence, and of the wicked conspiracy against him, to render him odious in the country, by stamping on him the crime of sedition. If there had been good grounds for this prosecution, a private attorney would not be the conductor of it. No, it would have been sanctioned by the fiat of his Majesty's Attorney-General, the directions of the Crown Solicitor, and the support of the King's Counsel on the Circuit.

Mr. Riky, Deputy Clerk of the Crown, said that if the case had been considered of sufficient importance, there would have been a prosecution by order of the Attorney-General.

Mr. Mac Nally continued—This is a case of the utmost importance to Mr. Kelly; a case, which, if founded in truth, no punishment of pain or ignominy can be too severe; but if the materials which had been furnished to Counsel were true, the whole of the proceedings against Mr. Kelly were formed in a confederacy against him, false and malicious; and, as far as his professional assistance could go, he would advise such measures as were necessary to bring the conspiracy to light—to bring Mr. Kelly to an honorable acquittal.

Lord Norbury observed—that the charge was serious, and that the whole ought to come before the Court upon the merits if possible; and the trial was postponed by consent of the Defendant until the ensuing Spring Assizes.

On the Civil side there were several records, two only of serious import, viz—
The Rev. Father in God, the Bishop of Leighton and Ferris, against one of the Peasantry inhabiting the Commons of his Lordship's see.—This was one of several cases brought by his Lordship to protect the Cottagers on the commons, and on evidence of their having taken up their habitation there, without licence, and the production of Petty's Down Survey. There was a verdict for the Plaintiff, of course against the Cottagers.

Insolvency of Bankrupts.—McCarthy, a Bankrupt.
This was an action of assumpsit, in making more than two per cent. for one hundred pounds.—The Bankrupt was examined at great length, and from the nature of his testimony, the Jury brought in a verdict for the Defendant, with costs.

THE ARMY.

The arrangement, which so long since was announced, is now carried into effect—the venerable Earl of Harcourt is appointed Governor of Portsmouth; and, to the satisfaction of the Royal Military College, and of the Army at large, that scilicet, and able officer, General Alexander Hope, who was wounded severely in the service, is appointed to succeed Lord Harcourt. From the appointment of General Hope to the see which he occupies, and some other changes which we hear are meditated, the most beneficial consequences may be looked for, and that future Generals will issue from this national school who will emulate those of France and other countries. The whole of General Cartwright's fine regiment, the 3d Dragoons, have embarked at Portsmouth for Portugal; their veteran General remained with them all the time they were at Portsmouth, saw them as they went into the boats, and took leave of them. The wind was as fair as it could blow, but there was no order for their sailing.

General Bland's regiment, the 5th Dragoon Guards, is at Chichester, on its way to Portsmouth to embark for Portugal.

General Leith, who has had a command under Lord Wellington, gets a regiment by the death of General Fox.

Colonel Ainslie goes out as Adjutant-General to the army in Sicily.

On the 31st, a considerable body of the King's German Legion was embarked at Portsmouth; they are fine looking men. General Le Marchant, who had the direction of the education of the young gentlemen at Marlborough, goes out with them to Portugal.

A large detachment of the Hindostani, the 7th regiment, is embarked for Portugal.

Among the troops that sailed lately from Plymouth for Portugal, was a troop of the 9th Light Dragoons.

Not a single accident happened during the embarkation of the 3000 cavalry from Plymouth last week. Sir Edward Buller, who commands in the absence of Admiral Sir Robert Calder, was indefatigable in his exertions to expedite the sailing of the fleet the moment the wind became fair; he went in his boat on board every ship, and did not leave them till the whole got under weigh, although it was past midnight before this could be accomplished.

The 28th Regiment has sailed from Gibraltar to Lisbon.

Lord Anstruth's regiment, the Edinburgh Militia, has arrived at Norwich from Scotland.

The Nottingham Militia, now doing garrison duty at Plymouth, together with the Royal Cornwall, having some time since volunteered for Ireland, to render him obedient to hold themselves in readiness to proceed thither immediately.

The South Devon Regiment, commanded by Lord Rolle, have also volunteered for Ireland; as have most of the Militia Regiments in the Western district.

The Local Militia does not prove so great a nursery for the regulars Government admitted; for, on an inspection of the returns of the eight regiments belonging to Devon, at the completion of their late training, being the third year, not more than 1000 have turned out since their establishment. Ministers have turned out since their establishment. Ministers calculated, that in four years one-eight would volunteer.

OFFICERS OF THE MADRAS ESTABLISHMENT.—The Court of Directors have passed the following Resolutions respecting the 20-pounded Madras Officers.

The Court having required the consideration of the several cases of the Officers of the Madras Establishment, now at home under suspension, are of opinion that the officers of which Major de Mordaugh has been adjudged to be guilty by the Court's Resolutions of the 29th of March, would have justified his removal from the Company's service, and would have compelled the Court to adopt that determination, if in case had stood disinterestedly, and other circumstances; subsequent events, however, which the Court have maturely considered, disposed them to allow of a more favourable result; namely, first, the influence of very general civil example at Madras, early in 1809, and the continuing acting from this source; and secondly, the amnesty granted by the Government (and which, some exceptions only) to the whole of the Madras army, as published on the 24th of September, 1809; which, though it could not extend to the interruption of the judgment of this Court on the conduct of the Officers suspended on the 1st of May, 1809, and referred home for decision, may have been considered by some persons to have embraced them in the spirit of the measure; and finally, the possibility that the intended memorial to Lord Minto might have been abandoned by the Officers from their conviction of its criminal nature and tendency; but of which the Court regret that no proof whatever exists; and therefore resolve, That the suspension imposed upon Major de Mordaugh be removed, but that he shall only be permitted to return to India whenever this Court shall have declared its opinion that the complete restoration of order and military subordination at Madras, shall have rendered such a measure justifiable, and consistent with that spirit which it is the paramount duty and determination of this Court at all times to give to the civil authorities.

Similar resolutions have been passed on considering the Cases of Lieutenant-Colonel Major Captain Marshall, and Captain James Grant.

No appointment could be had at once more popular as well as judicious, than placing the gallant Graham as next in command to Lord Wellington in Portugal; he is both a scientific soldier and acquainted with service.

The Hon. Colonel Pakenham is appointed a Major-General under Lord Wellington.

Major-Generals Clay, Wood, and Wallis, have been appointed to the Staff in the West Indies.

Colonel Dixon, of the 1st West York Militia, all the Officers except two, and 700 of the militia of that regiment, have volunteered their services to Ireland, and the remainder of the men are now coming forward with great ardour.

The Oxfordshire Regiment of Militia, granted at Bristol, have extended their services for Ireland, and were on Monday sworn in accordingly.

Most of the Cheshire Regiment of Militia, now lying at Plymouth, have volunteered their services for Ireland.
