

EFFECTS OF LOVE.

Why dost thou, Albus, shun the throng?
Why join not in the festive song?

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

COURT OF KING'S BENCH, LONDON, APRIL 18.

Before Lord Ellenborough and Special Jurists.
ESBURY T. SWIFT AND CO.

This was an action brought to recover the sum of £10,000, which the Plaintiff alleged to have been presented from obtaining in the Lottery.

From the opening of the Attorney-General it appeared, the Plaintiff was impressed with an idea that the Ticket No. 27 would be drawn a capital prize in the Autumn Lottery, 1810.

Richard Bray, servant to Mr. Fry, swore that he went on the 30th of Oct. 1810, to the office of the Defendants, Swift and Co. to purchase the Ticket No. 27 in the Lottery.

Lord Ellenborough held, that as the Plaintiff had filed a Bill in Equity against the Defendants, and had produced their answer in evidence, that evidence was binding upon him in this suit.

MODERN LUXURY.

INGRAM B. DENYS.
This was an action brought to recover the sum of £551 12s. 7d. for goods sold and delivered.

Mr. Garrow stated, that the Plaintiff was a respectable upholsterer, and the Defendant a Gentleman of large and independent fortune, residing in Stone-square.

Lord Ellenborough.—“ Was this project of a bed she sent to the Defendant? Was he aware that the doors and eagles formed such a comfortable society?”

Mr. Garrow.—“ He saw the plans, my Lord.”
Lord Ellenborough.—“ Some estimation of the expense ought to have been given—£150 or £200 would not probably have occasioned surprise, but £700 was enormous.”

ture, he did not procure exquisite paintings for his own gratification merely.—No, he wished them to be seen and admired by others, particularly by those who participated in his pleasures.—and no person would endeavour to curtail the fair remuneration which those who ministered to his ease and convenience ought to receive.

The Attorney-General.—“ I will give the opposite side this advantage.—If I address the Jury, I mean to contend strongly on the point noticed by your Lordship.”

The Attorney-General, for the Defendant, here proposed to refer the cause to any Gentleman of credit, who could inspect the articles, and might call in upholsterers to assist his judgment.

Lord Ellenborough.—“ Was the Defendant aware of the great expense of this bed?”
Mr. Garrow said, it was part of his proof, that the Defendant saw the work in its progress, and over and over again approved of it.

Lord Ellenborough.—“ Was this project of a bed she sent to the Defendant? Was he aware that the doors and eagles formed such a comfortable society?”

Lord Ellenborough.—“ Are there any persons going about the streets of London who have purchased any of these £700 beds?”
The Attorney-General.—“ I do not think there are, my Lord—they are more likely to be found in the custody of keepers.”

Lord Ellenborough.—“ It will be for the consolation of the Jury, whether, when the Plaintiff was about making a piece of furniture, more expensive in the ratio of 7 to 2, than any similar piece he had ever made, he should not have given notice of that circumstance, that the Defendant might exercise a safe judgment.”

ENGLISH CATHOLIC ADDRESS.

TO HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS THE PRINCE REGENT.
We, Roman Catholics of England, humbly beg leave to represent to your Royal Highness.—

That, at the time of your Royal Father's accession to the Throne, the laws in force in this Kingdom against persons professing the Roman Catholic Religion were sanguinary and oppressive.

That several of those laws have been repealed, by the Acts of the 18th and 31st of his present Majesty; but that many are still in force against them, from the effects of which they severely suffer.

That the only ground alleged for continuing these laws in force against them is, their adherence to their religious principles.

That your Royal Highness will take into your Princely consideration the penalties and disabilities to which the English Roman Catholics are still subject, for their conscientious adherence to their Religion.

That the Plaintiff overcharged him £500; but he would prove, by persons of the first respectability in the trade, who had minutely examined all the articles, that the charges were correct.

That the Plaintiff had to go to his silk-mercer, his carver, his or-molu merchant, to procure the raw material, and as he was not paid in ready money, a fair profit must be allowed.

That the Plaintiff overcharged him £500; but he would prove, by persons of the first respectability in the trade, who had minutely examined all the articles, that the charges were correct.

and in whom they have the fullest confidence. On Monday last, the Miners who reside between Redruth and Truro assembled in great numbers, and proceeded to the houses of several farmers, who they induced to sign a written engagement to sell them wheat at 30 shillings, and barley at 15 shillings a Cornish bushel, of those Winchester bushels.

Where this engagement was signed, and delivered in compliance with it, the Miners refused to receive the wheat, and contented themselves with soliciting a little bread, an article of food which some of them declared they had not tasted for several days.

CARRICK-ON-SUIR.

AT A MEETING OF THE GENTLEMEN, inhabitants of the Town and Neighbourhood of Carrick-on-Suir, held on Tuesday, the fourteenth of April, 1812.

The Most Noble the Marquis of Waterford was the Chairman.
The following Address was voted to JOHN BLACK, Esq. Captain in the North Mayo Regiment of Militia, and a Magistrate of the Counties of Waterford, Tipperary, and Kilkenny.

Sir, I have your residence in this Town, and since your appointment to the Commission of the Peace, your line of conduct, as a Magistrate, an Officer, and a Gentleman: your personal and indefatigable exertions to preserve the Public Peace, to protect the innocent, to search for, and to bring the offender to justice, claim our warmest approbation and gratitude.

Accept, then, these our acknowledgments, which you have as deservedly merited, and allow us to express our most sincere regret at your recent and unexpected removal from amongst us.

My Lord, I receive, with feelings of gratitude and esteem, to which I can give no adequate expression, the testimony of approbation with which the Meeting of Gentlemen, held at Carrick-on-Suir, have been pleased to honour me.

In whatever situation I may hereafter be placed, I shall preserve your Address as the proudest memorial of my life, and as an irrefragable call to the faithful performance of the obligations which I owe to my Country.

LONDON.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 15.
We, this morning, received Paris Papers to the 11th instant. They remain completely silent in respect to the operations in the Peninsula.

The Duke of Reggio, at the head of the French troops, entered the capital of Berlin on the 28th ult. and from the good understanding that subsisted between the two Courts, they were received with the greatest joy.

The affairs of the Peninsula, since the commencement of its struggle for independence, never wore a more promising aspect than at the present moment.

The fall of Badajoz will have the effect of clearing the South of Spain from the presence of the invaders; and it is, perhaps, not too much to expect that, in the course of three months, there will not be a Frenchman to the Southward of the Tagus.

Our affairs are, we are informed, in a very promising state. The Earl of Wellington will then reap the reward of his toils.—and, continuing the system upon which he has so successfully acted, he may be enabled, after possessing himself of the bridges of the Tagus, to drive the enemy across the Ebro—never to return.

Fort Fleurba, at the time Earl Wellington's headquarters were established there, after the battle of Talavera, was a heap of ruins, and allowed to remain in that state by the Spaniards; but the French, on obtaining possession of Badajoz, saw that it was of the utmost importance to fortify Fleurba, which is situated not more than 300 yards from the fortress, and is on a level with the tops of the houses in the lower and principal part of the town.—Star.

We rejoice to learn that one of the earliest acts of the new Spanish Regency was to place under strict blockade the whole line of the coast of Spain now in the hands of the enemy.

A Gentleman who arrived by one of the American vessels, informs us, that since the state of commercial men in America, that it is almost impossible to borrow money on any terms.

We lament to state new disorders in the neighbourhood of Leeds. The following letter came to our hand yesterday:—

“ On rising this morning found the rioters had attacked Mr. Cartwright's mill at the lawfields, just beyond Little Town, who is, it seemed, a very spirited man, and was well prepared for them.
