

Ireland, yet the Committee felt, that in yielding to this request they would have done injustice to the sitting Members, who had witnesses in London at every expense.

Mr. ABERCROMBY said, that he had been accused of libelous expressions in his former report on this subject, but there was no occasion of his life less likely to disturb him than this, because he hoped that bringing forward this subject would lead the House to adopt some invariable rule that would govern every future case.

Mr. WYNN suggested the propriety of withdrawing the Petition. It appeared to him that the Petition implied something like censure on the Committee, and he did not wish to see a precedent of this nature recorded on the Journals of the House. He did not impute any blame to the Petitioner; he was guilty of no act of negligence in not having brought before the Poll Clerk; he could not have been aware that by such an omission his case would be injured; for what was more natural to suppose, than that the evidence which had been received in other cases would have been sufficient in this? The Committee, however, had thought otherwise, and though he lamented their decision, because it bore severely on the Petitioner, still he could not approve of the present proceeding.

The Petition was then ordered to be printed.

That, on the first day of the present Session of Parliament, a Petition was received by the House, praying a determination of the right of election, and complaining of an undue return for the County of the City of Limerick.

That the Petitioner, under the several statutes passed in the 23rd and 53rd years of his present Majesty's reign.

That the Petitioner served a notice on the sitting Member, apprising him that it was intended to apply for a commission to take evidence in Ireland.

That a Select Committee having been appointed to try the merits of such Petition, the statements and lists were exchanged on Friday, the 27th of February.

That in order to prove the Petitioner's right as a Candidate to proceed, the poll-books were produced in the hands of the proper officers—the Town Clerk and Clerk of the Peace for the City of Limerick.

That the Returning Officers were proved to have received the poll-books at the immediate close of the last election, and to have soon after delivered them to the Town Clerk and Clerk of the Peace, as the proper custodians.

That the poll-books were tendered to the Select Committee by the Town Clerk and Clerk of the Peace, in the same state as when he had received them, and with the seal of the Returning Officers unbroken.

That no evidence, or even suggestion, was offered, to show that the poll-books had ever been out of legal custody.

That in every Irish case since the Union such evidence had been uniformly received and acted upon, as sufficient to authenticate the poll-books.

That it nevertheless appeared to such Select Committee to reject this evidence as insufficient, and to refuse the Petitioner any opportunity of producing the witnesses, whose attendance was rendered necessary by the strict rules now for the first time so enforced.

That however deeply the Petitioner lamented a determination which had affected his own hopes and interests, and has prevented a large and respectable body of Electors from laying their claims before the House of Commons, and from obtaining a redress for the injustice of which they complain, still the Petitioner bowed with submission to the authority of the Select Committee.

That the Petitioner could not but feel more strongly the hardships of his situation, when he considered that he, obeying every enactment of the Legislature, every standing order of the House, and pursuing the uniform course of usage and precedent, was yet excluded from the remedy he had sought to obtain; whilst other Petitioners, who have neglected the positive enactments of statutes, and who are therefore barred by the ordinary construction of law, are yet, by the equitable jurisdiction of Parliament, admitted as Petitioners at the Bar.

That the Petitioner begs here to represent most strongly the dangerous consequences to which the decision of the Select Committee must inevitably lead, by subjecting Irish Petitioners to peculiar difficulties and enormous expenses; by investing returning officers with a most arbitrary power; by countervailing the intentions of the Legislature, in providing for the claims of Electors in Ireland; and by placing the claims of Petitioners and the rights of Electors at the mercy of a single D. P. Sheriff, or Poll Clerk.

Your Petitioner begs humbly to suggest, that if all Returning Officers were bound to insert in the indentures of returns, and that such returns, duly authenticated, should, the evils which have pressed on your Petitioner with such peculiar severity would for the future be obviated.

He therefore prays, that the House will take the premises into consideration, and will make thereon such order as to their wisdom should seem meet.

Mr. LYTTLETON wished to ask the Noble Lord opposite (Lord Palmerston) whether any resolution had been come to regarding the oath to be taken by officers on half-pay, at the time of receiving their half-pay?

Lord PALMERSTON had not been able to give a satisfactory account last Session to a similar question from the Hon. Gentleman. He trusted, however, that he had to make do with his power to tell the Honourable Member, that it had been thought expedient to relax the rule referred to, that whereas by the present regulation no officer could receive his half-pay without making an affidavit that he held no other place of emolument, civil or military, under his Majesty, it had been resolved to substitute an oath, that he held no office, civil or military, under the Crown, exceeding three times the amount of his half-pay, which was computed to be equal to about twice the amount of his full pay, and considering that the greater number of officers, particularly inferior ones, had little chance of future employment, he hoped the House would not look upon the amended regulation as too liberal.

Mr. LYTTLETON said, the answer of the Noble Lord was entirely satisfactory.

Alderman WOOD begged to know, whether any regulation had been adopted respecting officers entitled to half-pay serving under Foreign Powers?

Lord PALMERSTON said, that the prohibition had only extended to officers holding places of emolument under the Crown. It might be a subject of consideration, whether it should be extended further.

COMMITTEE OF SUPPLY.

On the motion of Mr. ARBUTHNOT, the House resolved itself into a Committee of Supply, to which were referred the Miscellaneous Estimates and the Civil Contingencies.

In the Committee, Mr. ARBUTHNOT said, the sum intended to be proposed for the Miscellaneous Estimates of the current year was in the whole £531,000. But, in consequence of the Estimates of last year having been made up only to the 10th of October, he should be obliged to more for certain sums to make up the arrears of the last quarter. The whole sum voted last year to meet the civil contingencies was £200,000—There was a reduction of £50,000 made in those of the present year; a sum of £300,000 was to be voted for to defray the general contingencies, and one of £250,000 for separate charges—making in the whole £500,000.

Mr. ARBUTHNOT then moved—

That it is the opinion of this Committee, that a sum of £79,000 be granted to his Majesty to make good the deficiency in the grant of last year, to meet such contingencies of a civil nature as do not form a part of the ordinary charges on the Civil List.—Agreed to.

That a sum not exceeding £300,000 be granted to his Majesty, to defray such civil contingencies of the present year, as do not form a part of the ordinary charges on the Civil List.—Agreed to.

That a sum of £18,419 be granted to his Majesty, to make good the deficiency of the salary fund for the last year, and to defray the salaries of the Secretaries of State, the Officers of the Treasury, and the Privy Council.

Sir H. PARNELL said, that the accounts respecting the proposed grant had been laid on the table in such a manner, that it was not easy to discover the precise manner in which the different parts of it had been applied. He supposed there would be no objection in producing papers, specifying exactly the particulars of its application.

Mr. ARBUTHNOT professed his willingness to afford any information, or to prepare the papers desired.

The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER could have no objection in bringing the subject, in all its particulars, under the view of the House.

Mr. ARBUTHNOT thought the papers he held in his hand already afforded very ample information.

Alderman WOOD said, it appeared large sums of money had been expended in purchasing gold snuff-boxes, to present to foreign Ambassadors, which ought to be rigorously inquired into.

Mr. ARBUTHNOT said, the worthy Alderman was under a mistake.

The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER inquired that the worthy Alderman mistook fees received for fees paid.

Mr. CALCRAFT hoped, that whatever had been the mistake of his worthy friend, or the honour of the Right Honourable Gentleman, the House would not be turned aside from their inquiry.

The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER said, the grant was not for the current year, but to make good the deficiency of the last year, which consideration ought to induce the House to agree to it.

Mr. CALCRAFT thought, that if Ministers had spent money impudently, that was no reason for calling on the House to make it up.

Mr. ARBUTHNOT said it had been expended in paying the salaries of Officers under Government.

Mr. C. H. HUTCHINSON conceived it was the duty of every Member of the House to draw its attention to money questions. If £22,000, had been laid out in gold snuff-boxes for Foreign Ambassadors, he could only term it a waste of the public money.

Mr. ARBUTHNOT was not anxious to press any of the votes, if Gentlemen opposite desired to postpone them in order to obtain further information. As to the Snuff-boxes, he had every information ready to show on what occasions, by whom they were given; and by whom they were received.

The motion was then withdrawn.

Lord CARHAMPTON inquired whether any charge had been set down for the year 1819?—Agreed to. A sum not exceeding £23,000, towards defraying contingent expenses in the Treasury for the year 1819.—Agreed to.

A sum of £6500, to defray the salaries of the Officers in the Court of the Receipts, Exchequer.

Mr. HUME suggested the propriety of postponing this grant also.

The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER said, the House could scarcely doubt the wisdom of discharging the salaries of the officers of so important a Court.

The motion was then agreed to.

A sum not exceeding £11,215, towards defraying the expenses of the House of Lords and the House of Commons, for the year 1819.—Agreed to.

A sum of £22,400, to defray the salaries and allowances of the Officers of the Houses of Lords and Commons, for the year 1819.—Agreed to.

A sum of £233 4s. 1d. to make good the deficiency in the salaries of the Officers of the Houses of Lords and Commons for the last year.

A sum not exceeding £11,974, towards defraying the expenses of works, and repairs of public buildings, for the year 1819.

Some conversation on this vote took place between Mr. Bennet, Mr. Arbuthnot, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Williams, and Sir M. W. Ridley, after which the motion was agreed to.

A sum not exceeding £30,000 towards completing the Inland Navigation from Inverness to Fort William.

In reply to a remark of Mr. Bennet—

Mr. ARBUTHNOT said, that, according to an estimate he had received on the work, it would take about £27,000 to complete it.

The CHANCELLOR of the EXCHEQUER was ready to withdraw the motion, if Gentlemen desired it, till there was a fuller House.

Strangers were ordered to withdraw, but in discretion took place; we understood the motion was withdrawn.

On our re-admission to the gallery, we found Mr. Brougham complaining of an observation which Mr. Forbes made, which insinuated that he had put the question prematurely.

Mr. FORBES disclaimed having any intention of insinuating that the Chairman had committed any impropriety.

Mr. BROGDEY said he was sure his Hon. Friend meant to cast no imputation, but his particular expression was not inaptly observed.

Mr. ARBUTHNOT moved, that it be the opinion of this Committee, that a sum not exceeding £7,123 be granted for the maintenance and expenditure of the convicts employed at home for the year 1819.

Mr. BENNETT objected to the manner in which his Estimate was made out; he thought it by an means explanatory of the particular expenditures.

Mr. ARBUTHNOT said, that the accounts were regularly made up.

The following Resolutions were then agreed to:—

That a sum not exceeding £3777 be granted for defraying the maintenance and expense of criminal lunatics, for the year 1819.

That a sum not exceeding £3000 be granted for the extraordinary expenses of the current year, which may be incurred in prosecuting offenders for coinage.

That a sum not exceeding £23,000 be granted for law charges.

That a sum not exceeding £3000 be granted to the national vaccination establishment.

That a sum not exceeding £17,000 be granted for printing and distributing the Acts of both Houses of Parliament.

That a sum not exceeding £2000 be granted for printing the votes of the House.

That a sum not exceeding £119 9s. be granted for defraying the expense of printing the second volume of the Journals of the House.

That a sum not exceeding £11,000 be granted for defraying the allowances to the American Loyalists.

That a sum not exceeding £251 10s. be granted to defray the allowances to retired clerks in the lottery-office.

That a sum not exceeding £2442 be granted to defray the allowances to the superannuated and retired auditors of public accounts.

THURSDAY, MARCH 11.

The wall of Sunday was low, when we were out of doors, but its absence is very remarkable, and now carries any indignant of indignation. Any thing of moment that preceded will be found in our columns.

ATTACK UPON THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

We have formerly been advertised to this subject, and shall now enter somewhat more at length into the controversy; but we are still restrained from detailing all the particulars, lest we should interfere with Magisterial arrangements, or appear to the ends of public policy. The attack took place on the night of Tuesday, the 24th instant, and was a violation of the laws. The number of the banditti concerned cannot be easily ascertained, but those who entered the House (about seven) were well armed, and appeared perfectly organized for the purpose of murder and rapine. In every case in which we have had occasion to speak of spirited resistance, we have happily had to do with the stoutest of the nobles in Scotland, and in this instance, though nearly effrighted by the sight of the number of Major Quin, and in the midst of his property, we have to congratulate the House on the total frustration of their attempt. The names of the banditti are as follows:—Richardson, who lodged at the house of Pat. Dixon, Park-st., adjoining Major Quin's, Mr. Cash, Mr. King, John D. King, and Pat. Dalton, all of whom, as we have already given by Mary Murphy, Mrs. Quin's servant, (who presentially made her escape as above) immediately repaired to the room of Major Quin, and lodged at the house of Pat. Dixon, Park-st., adjoining Major Quin's, Mr. Cash, Mr. King, John D. King, and Pat. Dalton, all of whom, as we have already given by Mary Murphy, Mrs. Quin's servant, (who presentially made her escape as above) immediately repaired to the room of Major Quin, and lodged at the house of Pat. Dixon, Park-st., adjoining Major Quin's, Mr. Cash, Mr. King, John D. King, and Pat. Dalton, all of whom, as we have already given by Mary Murphy, Mrs. Quin's servant, (who presentially made her escape as above) immediately repaired to the room of Major Quin, and lodged at the house of Pat. Dixon, Park-st., adjoining Major Quin's, Mr. Cash, Mr. King, John D. King, and Pat. Dalton, all of whom, as we have already given by Mary Murphy, Mrs. Quin's servant, (who presentially made her escape as above) immediately repaired to the room of Major Quin, and lodged at the house of Pat. Dixon, Park-st., adjoining Major Quin's, Mr. Cash, Mr. King, John D. King, and Pat.
