

which had been addressed before them, and upon that they would conclude whether the steps which had been taken were dictated by the desire of promoting revolution, or solely with a view of obtaining plunder in the confusion which would necessarily follow. In considering the evidence of an accomplice, they would naturally look to his previous character; they would see whether there was anything in his former course of life, from whence to conclude that he was a man capable of pursuing a continued and undeviating course of crime; but above all, they would consider, from all the circumstances of the case, what degree of credit ought fairly to be given to his evidence. He knew of no law that applied to accomplices, which did not apply to every other witness who came into a Court of Justice. The evidence of every witness ought to be examined with care and jealousy, and in proportion only as his story was consistent with probability was he entitled to belief. Now let them look to the fair test upon which the evidence of Adams was to be tried. His character, up to the time of his entering into the diabolical schemes of the Poisoner, was unimpaired; and if any thing could be urged on that score, no doubt the Prisoner Brunt, with whom he had been intimately acquainted, would not fail to have adduced it. In so much, therefore, he stood upon fair and eligible grounds.—Then they would ask themselves, what interest he could have in stating that which was not true? The more criminal the plot which he disclosed, the blacker he gave to his own reputation; and, added to this, he knew that from the candour and correctness of his confession could alone hope for mercy towards himself.—Then he must be aware, that if he stated that which was false, his story was capable of contradiction, and therefore altogether fruitless. So that, in every point of view, he was a competent witness. As was before said, however, the Jury still had the power of exercising their own sound discretion, and of placing in him only that degree of confidence which he seemed to deserve, and which the confirmation he had received fairly justified. The learned Counsel for the Prisoner had made use of the gratuitous expression, that this man, Adams, was the only witness to prove the case. Was this the fact? Were there not three other witnesses, who all spoke to the same occurrence: he alluded to Monument, Hiden, and Dwyer, the two latter of whom were in all respects pure and uncontaminated, for what had been said of Dwyer was absolutely beneath consideration. These men were all unknown to each other—had never seen each other—and yet they all agreed in their story as to the plan for assassinating His Majesty's Ministers, seizing cannon, providing arms, burning houses, and establishing a Provisional Government. Independent of these, a variety of other witnesses had been examined, who spoke to points trivial in themselves, but all confirmatory of Adams, and, as it were, completely dorevailing with the most minute parts of his story. This was the case with regard to Brunt's apprentice; to the landlady of the house in which Brunt lived, and her daughter; to the officers by whom Brunt's house had been searched; and even to Tidd's own daughter, whose story was precisely consistent with the plan which had been detailed, but which had been so providentially frustrated. In fact, each witness formed a link in the general chain, which was complete in all its parts. But there was a still stronger argument in favour of all that had been stated, and that was, that it had not been contradicted by evidence, although such evidence was capable of being produced. For, if what Adams had disclosed was not true, why was not Potter, and Cook, and Palin, and all of whom he mentioned, as having been present at the various meetings which took place, and who were eligible witnesses for the Prisoner, not called. The absence of these men afforded an additional reason for giving implicit belief to all which the witnesses for the Crown had said. The learned gentleman proceeded in a luminous and eloquent strain still farther to illustrate his argument, and with great ingenuity to contend that it was impossible, under all the circumstances of the case, for the Jury to come to any other conclusion than that the several charges of high treason imputed to the Prisoner had been established beyond all doubt. If, however, as had been said by his learned friend (Mr. Adolphus), any doubt did exist, to the benefit of that doubt the Prisoner was fully entitled. The Lord Chief Justice stated to the Jury, in a clear and perspicuous manner, the law of high treason, as it existed both in the statute of Edward 3rd and in the more recent statute of the 36th of the late King. He then recapitulated the four charges contained in the indictment against the Prisoner, and the several acts alleged to have been committed in furtherance thereof. His Lordship then read over the material points of the evidence, upon which he commented as he proceeded, declaring, that if the Jury were satisfied with the credibility of the witnesses who had been examined, the crime of high treason had been completely established. Upon the evidence alone they were to form their conclusion; and he was sure, whatever that conclusion might be, it would be justified by a conscientious sense of the important trust reposed in them, both as it regarded the unhappy man at the bar, and the interests of the Country at large. The verdict of the Jury, and the subsequent proceedings, have been already laid before our readers. The friends of the Cat-street Conspirators applied to Lord Sturmount for the bodies of the witnesses, but they were refused.

THURSDAY, MAY 11.
We this day conclude a very full Report of the trial of THURSTON, or BERNET, as that now seems to have been his real name. The details in this case embraced all that was material in the other trials, and furnish to the Public, combined with what is already known, an ample account of occurrences more extraordinary than any which have taken place in the annals of Great Britain. The following are the particulars with respect to the other conspiracy, to which we could only briefly allude on Tuesday.—
TOWNSHALL, SOUTH-WALK, May 6.—Yesterday, private information, anonymous, was received by Mr. JAMES NEWMAN, Chief Clerk of this office, of a number of pikes and bayonets being manufactured at a smith's shop in an obscure lane, in the Borough of South-walk, for the purpose of being applied to the same dreadful use as those of the wretched THURSTON and his associates, the famed Cat-street conspirators, were intended for. It unfortunately happened, that Sir JOHN EMMER was obliged to attend Lord Sturmount at the Home Office, on particular business; and no other Magistrates had arrived to transact the ordinary business, which consisted of a few cases of common assault and street riots.—In this dilemma, Mr. NEWMAN did not know how to act, but, as the Act of last Session, commonly called "The Search for Arms' Bill," requires that the information should be laid on oath, and that not having been done in this case, no warrant could, of course, issue to examine the premises. We understand the communication declared in express terms, that part of the arms was intended to be removed last night; in consequence of which the Marshals and their assistants expressed their determination to watch in the neighbourhood of the suspected house, and to apprehend any suspicious persons whom they might see coming or going out with a parcel.—
In noticing the reported postponement of the Coronation, we indirectly intimated our doubt of that intention. On this subject the Globe says:—
"A confident expectation of a Coronation in August prevailed about a month ago, and large purchases of ermine, and other materials required to be worn in the costumes at that ceremony, were made at the time. It has been since rumoured, that, in consideration of the great expense, which is estimated at 7 or £800,000, and the present distressed state of the Country, the ceremony would be deferred; but the rumour of a Coronation in August is now revived. A Morning Paper of this day (Saturday) states, that orders have been issued to the Law Officers of the Crown to draw up a Proclamation preparatory to the ceremony."
The Catholic Question has been postponed in the House of Commons until the 16th of this month. Several of the Dublin Papers assert, on what they represent as high Ministerial authority, that this Question is to be introduced to Parliament by the whole force of Ministry, but they do not say to what extent the Claims of the Catholics are to be acceded to by Ministers. We have seen from the supporters of the Catholic Cause; and although we have been subjected to obliquity by a certain position of that Body, because we did not go to the violent extremes which were so ardently desired, and the consequences of which have proved so ruinous & abortive, we have changed no principle; we are still their advocates for an equal participation, on their part, of all the privileges of the Constitution. Their rights as men, their character as individuals, high and noble in the preservation, upon every occasion, of the common welfare, entitle them, were there no other ground of claim, to the honourable and independent station in which we have ever been anxious that they should be placed. Let them, however, look with prudence upon the new grounds on which they are represented as standing. Do they expect liberality from all the Leaders in His Majesty's Cabinet? If they do, it is more than we can believe, and we leave the point for their deliberation. The Dublin Evening Post throws discredit on the whole transaction—the Correspondent refuses its sanction to the contemplated plan—and we are, therefore, justified in at least entertaining doubts of it.
The London Journals of Sunday conveyed nothing worth present insertion.—No mail due.
The degree of Master in Surgery was conferred on Mr. HACKETT, of Cappoquin, on Monday, the first day of May, in the Royal University of Glasgow.
MR. GRATTAN.
CATHOLIC AGGREGATE MEETING.
A Meeting of Catholic Gentlemen was held at D'Arcy's, in Essex-street, on Saturday, pursuant to Adjournment.
Sir THOMAS ESMOND, Bart. in the Chair.
The following Address and Answer were read:—
SIR—We have learned with deep affliction, that your health has been of late much impaired, and that your Physicians deem your intended journey to England for the present unadvisable. The object of that journey is avowed, and is one which revives and increases those sentiments of lively gratitude and profound attachment, which we have ever entertained towards you; and we cannot more suitably express the sincerity of those sentiments than by most earnestly and anxiously entreating that you will postpone that journey, of which our liberties are the great object.

"We have, therefore, a right to conjure you to spare yourself for your afflicted Country, and to await a more favourable, and, we trust, an early opportunity, of advocating our Cause with renewed health." For and on behalf of the Meeting,
R. RANFALL, M.D. DONNELLY, Chairman.
N. P. O'CONNOR, Secretary.
"Right Hon. Henry Grattan."
Gentlemen—I thank you much for your solicitude on my account. I had intended to bring on your question speedily, but I feel that this is at present impossible; I shall endeavour to bring it on in a reasonable time, such as may suit the convenience of the parties concerned.
"Nothing but physical impossibility shall prevent me, as I consider that my last breath belongs to my Country. I have the honour to be, Gentlemen, your very obedient humble servant."
HENRY GRATTAN.
I hope, in the course of next week, to be able to write to you more fully on the important subject alluded to in your Address."
The same sentiments of profound veneration for Mr. Grattan, which were so conspicuous at the Meeting on Wednesday last, persuaded the present Assembly.
The following Resolutions were moved by Mr. O'Connell, seconded by Mr. H. O'Connor, and unanimously adopted:—
Resolved—That Mr. McDonnell, Mr. Woolfe, Mr. Shiel, and Mr. O'Connell, do constitute a Committee for the purpose of preparing Resolutions and a Petition for the ensuing Aggregate Meeting.
Resolved—That Messrs. Coppinger, Browne, Mollen, Hickey, and Fitzpatrick, do constitute a Committee for the purpose of obtaining a proper place for holding the Aggregate Meeting, on Tuesday, the 13th inst.
Mr. O'Connell was then called to the Chair. Thanks were unanimously voted to Sir Thomas Esmond, and the Meeting adjourned to half-past three o'clock on Tuesday.
WATERFORD MARKETS.
There has been a reduction in the price of Butter since Monday; on Tuesday, 100s. was the highest and most general rate, but towards the close of the market it declined to 98s. at which sales appeared heavy; yesterday morning it opened at 90s., but afterwards improved to 97s. and 98s., which were the most current prices of the day, though 95s. 6d. and 99s. were paid in a few instances. On Tuesday 154 firkins were weighed; yesterday, 163. Of the few sales of Bacon Pigs, scarcely any have exceeded 42s. Sealed Pigs are now so few as scarcely to require notice. Wheat has been a little more lively within the last two days, 37s. 6d. having been paid for some good parcels. The price of Oats continues to advance; the general rate for Farmers, for good samples, is fully equal to 13s. 6d.—but 13s. 9d. has been paid in several instances—and some prime lots have brought 14s. 2d. The price of Barley is nominally unaltered. No general change in Flour, but fine Thirlers, being rather scarce, bring 38s. Herring are 3 to 4s. per barrel lower.
BIRTH.
The Lady of Thomas Birnie, Esq. of a daughter.
MARRIAGE.
On Tuesday, the 2d ultimo, Walter Davidson, Esq. of Upper Canada, to Anne, eldest daughter of the late Thomas Birnie, of Dunmaling, Esq.
DIED.
On the 1st of February last, at Spanish Town, Jamaica, Francis Graham, Esq., a Gentleman of the most unbounded liberality and hospitality. His extensive patronage, as the representative of many Noblemen and Gentlemen, absentee proprietors of that Island, gave him the power of patronizing and rewarding many; many persons of the United Kingdom and of that Island survive him, who must feel that for prosperity and independence they are indebted to him; and this tribute, too important for the full expression of feeling due to the memory of a deceased and dear friend, is tendered as a melancholy testimony of esteem, respect, and affection, by an intimate acquaintance of twenty-two years standing.
