FUNDING OF EXCHEQUER BILLS AND LOAN.

CITY, ONE O'CLOCK.—This afternoon, at half-past twelve o'clock, Mr. Hale, from the Bank of England, made an official communication from Government, stating that Exchequer Bills would be funded to the amount of seven millions, and that the Chancellor of the Exchequer would probably require a Loan to the amount of from five to seven millions.

The following is the substance of the communication that was made: "The Earl of Liverpool & the Chan. of the Exchequer propose to open a book at the Bank of England on Wednesday, 31st instant, and the 1st and 2d of June, for receiving the subscriptions of persons desirous of funding Exchequer Bills, not exceeding seven millions. It is proposed that 99 five per cent. stock (the dividend to commence from the 5th of July, 1820) be given for every £100 principal Exchequer Bills subscribed; that 20 per cent. of the amount subscribed should be deposited at the time of subscribing; 20 per cent. 28th July; 20 per cent. 28th Sept.; 20 per cent. 24th Nov.; and 20 per cent. 26th Jan. 1821.

The Subscribers would be allowed to pay Exchequer Bills in advance, and to receive the interest on the amount of the Exchequer Bills for the first instalment, from the date of the Bills up to the 31st May, and upon the amount for each subsequent instalment, from the date of the Exchequer Bills up to the day when the instalments would have become due. Subscribers to have the option of paying money in lieu of Exchequer Bills, upon paying also a premium of 20s. for every £100 in money. Subscribers paying money in advance, to be allowed interest at the rate of 2d. per diem, from the day of payment to the day when the instalment in respect of which the payment made would have become due.

Scrap receipts to be issued by the Bank in the same manner as for a Loan. Earl Liverpool and the Chancellor of the Exchequer reserve to themselves the power of making any Loan for the service of the year, to the amount of five millions, and to increase such Loan by such a sum as the whole amount may fall short of seven millions. They also reserve to themselves the power of taking a Loan of twelve millions from the Sinking Fund."

By a mail which arrived this morning, we have received Brussels Papers to the 23d inst. Intelligence has been received by several mercantile houses in that City, from Cadix, stating, that a great number of Pirates, carrying the flag of the Insurgents of South America, are cruising off Cape St. Vincent. A squadron of these Pirates, in which were two vessels of thirty guns, has entered the Mediterranean, where it blockades the ports of Alicante and Malaga. It is added, that these Pirates have already made several captures; they respect no flag, and have even insulted vessels under English colours.

The contemplated installation of Knights of the Bath has been postponed sine die.

CORONERS INQUEST.

(From the Carlow Post.) On Wednesday last, a Coroner's Inquest was held in this town, at the public-house of Mr. Reynolds, on the body of Richard White, who died on Tuesday, as stated in our last publication. At ten o'clock a Jury was sworn by James Byrn, Esq. Coroner, when, after a view of the body, at the house of the deceased, they returned to the public-house to hear the evidence.

William Bulger was the first witness produced, who being sworn, stated, that he is a salter in the provision store of Thomas Cox, Esq.; that on the evening of Friday, the 19th inst. deponent and another man were instructed to put a horse of Mr. Cox's under a gig, to try him in harness; that on their return home, having passed the entrance into Mr. Cox's concern, the lane not being sufficiently wide, they took the horse (deceased being then in the gig) to the track way of the river Barrow, to turn him round; the horse started and became unmanageable, when one of the wheels rolled off the bank, upon which deponent leaped out and broke his leg; the gig pulled the horse into the river and the animal was drowned. Deponent, not knowing, at that time, what happened to deponent, ran for a boat to try to get the horse and gig out of the river, and on his return, in a few minutes, saw deponent carried away on a door to his own house, where he languished until the 23d, when he died.

Thomas Cox, Esq. deposed to the fact of the man being sent to try the horse under the gig, and of their going to the track-way. On perceiving what they were about, deponent ran to the spot, but before he arrived the accident occurred, and deponent, who was lying on the ground, begged deponent would send for a doctor; deponent sent to procure the attendance of Doctors Ryan, Reed, and Maharg, and had deponent carried home; deponent's wife called upon deponent about 11 o'clock that night, and consulted deponent as to the propriety of calling in Moore and Deegan, two bone-setters; deponent immediately objected to this, saying, she ought to have perfect confidence in the skill of the gentlemen attending, and that, if she acted contrary to his advice, she should do so at her own responsibility. Deponent's wife obtained deponent's horse about two o'clock in the morning, and sent for Deegan, who came (as she told informant) and set deponent's leg. Deponent died on the morning of the 23d.

Pat. McQuick assisted Vesty Deegan in setting deponent's leg; informant saw Deegan bandaging the leg and putting on splints, but did not hear deponent say that the leg was too tightly bandaged.

Wm. Ryan, Esq. M. D. and Surgeon, swore, that he was called upon, on Friday evening, when the accident happened to Richard White; that he found deponent had received a severe compound fracture in the left leg, and that there was a considerable projection of the upper or the lower bone; deponent immediately got assistance to bring the bones in apposition, but they continued to only a short time, and overlapped, in consequence of the contraction of the muscles; deponent was then under the necessity of taking away a small portion of the bone, to enable him to adapt it to its situation, but this having failed, he made a small incision in the tendinous part of the leg, by which means he effected it. When Dr. Reed arrived to deponent's assistance, he concurred in opinion as to what had been done. Having performed every thing necessary, the fractured part was lightly bandaged, and the leg was placed in the easiest position. Deponent, on hearing from Doctor Reed, next morning, that a bone-setter, named Vesty Deegan, had been called in, declined any further attendance. On the morning of deponent's death, deponent called at deponent's house, in company with Dr. Reed; his leg was much swollen, and the bandage so tightly put on, as to leave no doubt on deponent's mind, that it (and other mismanagement) produced a mortification, which caused his death.

Arthur Reed, Esq. M. D. and Surgeon, swore, that being out of town when the accident occurred, he found on his return home, between 7 and 8 o'clock in the evening, that he had been called upon to attend Richard White, to whose house he immediately proceeded, and found Doctor Ryan in the act of adjusting a compound fracture that deponent had received; it was about five or six inches below the knee of the left leg; Dr. Ryan informed deponent of what he had done; deponent then assisted Dr. Ryan in reducing the fracture and placing the limb in the usual way of compound fractures, having applied a tailed bandage and relaxing the leg to relieve the joint; there was a moderate effusion of serous blood from the wound, which deponent thought might have a good effect in keeping down the inflammation; deponent and Dr. Ryan, on leaving the house, gave directions that deponent should get low cooling drink, &c. and be kept free from uneasiness, and not get animal food, wine or spirits. Deponent thinks it necessary to be thus explicit, as deponent's wife wanted to administer wine which she had procured, in opposition to their instructions. Deponent heard on the following morning, that a person named Deegan had been called in, and deponent discontinued his attendance in consequence, until the morning of deponent's death, when, at the solicitation of Mr. Cox and Doctor Maharg, he went to deponent's house, not knowing that he was dead; deponent found a splint sunk on the shin, the leg swollen, and so tightly bandaged that the point of a knife could not be admitted between the bandage and the leg, and in such a position as would induce inflammation; deponent thinks that such mode of treatment, being contrary to that usually adopted in such cases, was likely to produce the consequences which ensued.

The Verdict of the Jury was—"That the death of the Deceased was occasioned by a compound fracture of the left leg, and improper treatment by Vesty Deegan and others."

ORANGE SYSTEM.—That there have been some abortive attempts to extend the Orange System in England, our Readers are well aware; that these attempts have generally received with contempt and reproach by the English People, is equally certain. Some foolish Societies may have been established; but that, at a period like the present, when all England is sunk in distress, and when no man can see his way out of the difficulties which press upon the very heart-strings of the Community—at a time, too, when Parties are literally exasperated against each other, that a living torch of discord should be introduced into that Country, to add to the burn-burnings of the People, and to keep alive dissension, is a circumstance that cannot be regarded otherwise than with horror by every friend of humanity—by every friend to the Government of the Country. This reflection has been drawn from us by a paragraph in one of the Papers, stating, that a Mr. Woodburn has arrived in this City from Manchester, as a Missionary from some Loyal Associations in Lancaster. Alas! are not the People of Manchester sufficiently wretched without a fresh importation of ill-blood? Would it not be better for this Mr. Woodburn to devise some means to employ and feed the starving wretches in Manchester, than provide a fuel for the evil passions? But, if this be his object, he will most assuredly fail. The English People have business much too serious before them to regard the workings of petty incendiaries.—Dublin Evening Post.

In consequence of the great extent to which smuggling has been carried on in the West of the County of Clare, for some time back, a general change is about to take place of all Revenue Officers of the lower classes in that district.

THE MARKETS.

LONDON CORN EXCHANGE, MAY 24.—Our market was abundantly supplied with all kinds of Grain this morning, for which the demand was very limited, and sales in consequence exceedingly heavy; yet a few sales of prime White Wheat obtained Monday's prices, but all other descriptions could have been bought on lower terms. Barley is nearly unobtainable, and full 1s. per quarter lower than on Monday, and only a few fresh samples could be got off at that reduction. The arrivals of Oats have been very considerable since Monday, which has occasioned a decline of 1s. per quarter, and but few sales could be effected. In Beans and Peas there is no alteration.

MAY 26.—Our market continues abundantly supplied with all kinds of grain, and the weather being so extremely favourable for the growing crops, causes exceedingly high sale for every article, and at a reduction of 2s. per quarter on Wheat, Barley, and Oats. The trade was very dull this morning, the consumers not being disposed to keep large stocks by them, so that the sales were but trifling to-day at the above decline. In Peas and Beans there is no alteration.

IMPORTATION OF FOREIGN GRAIN.—The ports are now open for the free importation of Wheat and Flour, Oats and Peas, from the British Colonies and Plantations in North America, but continue shut against the importation of any other description of foreign grain, except Buck Wheat, which is importable at a duty of 10s. per quarter. The weather has lately been exceedingly fine, and there is, in consequence, little chance of the ports being opened in August, for the importation of grain from the Continent.

WATERFORD MARKETS. The price of Butter suffered a depression on Saturday; in the morning, 99s. was paid in some instances for first quality, but afterwards 98s. was the highest general rate, and before the close it sunk to 96s. The supply was the largest since the opening of the season, 363 casks having been weighed at the crane, exclusive of several with drawn in consequence of the reduction. At yesterday's market the depression was still greater, for the whole half a dozen firkins obtained 98s. in the morning, the remainder of the supply (only 53 casks) went at 96s. Wheat, for which there are now but few purchasers, has declined to 36s. for prime quality, or at most 36s. 6d. the latter price to be obtained only in few instances. The price of Potato Oats, on Saturday and yesterday, could not be quoted over 14s. for best samples, to Farmers, and some purchasers not inclined to exceed 13s. 6d.—Common Oats, variable, from 12s. to about 13s. No change in Flour, Oatmeal, or other articles.

On Friday last, at his house in Mary-street, the Lady of William Milward, Esq. of a daughter. She gave on a tender subject.

For Title and Particulars, apply to HENRY DENNEY, Plaintiff's Solicitor, No. 104, Great Britain-street, Dublin.

THE GLASS REPLACED.

Tune the "Thon". From WARREN'S family shop in the Strand No. 50. A bottle of Blocking I bought. To polish my boots all begrimed and dirty, And scarce could believe the rich polish it brought. Says I, "Ere Blocking on earth it surpasses; The leather is free from a crack; My face I behold in two looking-glasses, No chony inkstand was ever so black. The longer I look'd still the greater I wonder'd, So bright was the face of my boots. My sister approach'd as thus minding I wonder'd, I knew she was vex'd by the tread of her foot. Her eyes sparkled rage, her exaction expressing, She sat herself down ere she spoke, At length she exclaimed, "While my hair I was dressing, So bright was the face of my boots. Then I bid her be cool, and to cease her repining; She gave me a tender salute. Her arm on my shoulder with fondness reclining, She saw her dear image distinct in my boot. She smiling replied, "My dear brother, believe me, 'Tis no longer for glasses I'll fret; 'At once I'll exchange my face for your reliable me, 'No glass can be equal to WARREN'S bright Jet."
