THE WATERFORD CHRONICLE.

FRENCH REVOLUTION—PUBLIC MEETING.

A highly respectable meeting of Gentlemen took place on Saturday, at Mr. Macdonnell's Great Rooms, in Cork, for the purpose of determining upon the propriety of calling a General Meeting of the Citizens to address the people of France upon the late Revolution in that Country.

Upon the Chairman, Mr. Crawford, jun. Esq., taking his place, Mr. R. Dowden (Richard) deputed the history of himself, F. B. Beamish and Charles Sugrue, Esqrs., had had with the Mayor, who had signed a requisition to his Worship to convene the contemplated meeting.

Doctor Baldwin, Captain Stawell, Mr. James Daly, Mr. Walsh, Mr. Beamish, and others remarked in pointed terms upon the communication, all agreeing that the meeting would not be the less important or respectable because the Mayor thought proper to refuse his sanction, and in consequence of the refusal, and several other great Cities, where the presidency of the Chief Magistrate had been dispensed with.

An idea which has gone abroad for some time still prevails, that the present administration must undergo a partial change, for it is alleged that "Mr. Goulburn is totally unfit for office." This allegation is but another version of the "feble administration" upon whom we made an observation or two yesterday.

With every respect for our contemporary of this morning, who really seems to have the interest of his country at heart, we must repeat that change of men will not benefit the state much, it is alone to change of measures that the people are looking up. They hope much when Parliament meets. It would be worse than idle to disappoint their expectations, and we again assert that strong measures are necessary to relieve the country from its great and unparalleled distress.

The translation of "France in 1829-30," has appeared in Paris, which, as might be expected, it has attracted general attention. The Figaro, one of the most brilliant and witty of the journals, devoted to liberalism, terminates its eulogium of Lady Morgan's production, with the following testimonial to its fidelity:—"It is impossible to have observed, with greater accuracy and precision, France as it is, liberal, generous, independent, and burning, (at the moment when Lady Morgan was writing,) to shake off that yoke from which it has since so happily released itself. We can cite, with especial praise, her chapter on the Orleans family, that on General Lafayette, and many others on the state of the arts and of literature in France."

A person named Mason, who with five or six others, was acting as keeper on property under seizure for rent at Castle Inch, near Kilkenny, disappeared a few days back, and has not since been heard of. From the fact of one individual having been heard to utter threats against Mason, a short time previous to the commencement of his unaccountable absence, it is feared he has fallen a victim to ill-will; but whether springing out of his occupation in the ungracious office of keeper, or from other causes, is unknown. Two persons, on whom suspicion rested, were apprehended, and underwent an examination, but again liberated.

The funeral of Mr. Huskisson took place on Friday morning in Liverpool, and it is described as being a most solemn and imposing spectacle. The procession moved at ten o'clock in the morning; it was attended by the mayor, sheriffs, and all the corporate officers, with an immense number of the freemen of the town. All the public and private schools were closed, and the children in the different charity establishments lined the road by which the funeral procession passed. The roofs of the houses were covered, while to the higher grounds of the new cemetery persons were admitted by tickets. The officer commanding the ordinance apprised the friends of the deceased, that he had permission to fire minute guns—the offer, however, was declined, as, in accordance with the wish of Mrs. Huskisson, it was determined that the funeral should be as private as, under circumstances, it possibly could be. Two guns were only fired—one when the procession entered the burial ground, and the other when the body was lowered into the grave. The body of Mr. Huskisson was interred in the lower ground of the new cemetery.

When the news of the recognition of Louis Philippe by England was announced to the audience of the theatre at Bordeaux, there were loud cries for "God save the King" which was played by the orchestra, and elicited several rounds of applause, mixed with enthusiastic bravos.

The Duke of Wellington is now at Drayton, the seat of Sir Robert Peel. Mr. Goulburn and Lord Aberdeen joined the Premier on Tuesday night. Mr. William Holmes is added to the Cabinet party. Rumours are afloat of the meeting being a consultation on the state of parties and Kings.

ARRIVAL OF MACHABEL TALLEYRAND.—DOVER, SEPT. 21.—Shortly before seven o'clock this evening, His Majesty's packet Crusader entered the harbour, with four carriages and several passengers, amongst whom were His Excellency Prince Talleyrand, the new Ambassador from the Court of St. Cloud in this country, and suite, Lord Pembroke, the Hon. Mr. Lambton, Baron Vandergrucht, a French Messenger, &c. His Excellency appeared in good health, but fatigued by the voyage; he was lifted by the crane from the vessel in his carriage, which was drawn from the Quay to Wright's Hotel by the ticket porters, and he was carried up stairs, in consequence of his lameness. A great many persons were collected to witness his arrival, but from his being nearly dark little could be seen of his person; his countenance appeared fine and open, whilst his grey hair was flowing over his shoulders. A Guard of Honour received him at the Hotel door, and shortly after his arrival he was introduced by John Ward, Esq., Collector of Customs, to Colonel Gosset, Commanding Officer of the Garrison, Lord Charles Wellesley, &c. &c.

KEYS OF FRANCE.—A few days ago the King, having determined to try to walk in the streets without being surrounded by a crowd, came out of his palace at the moment when the corporal of the post was going out to make his round. "I wish to go with you," said His Majesty to the commander of the patrol, "perhaps they will allow me to pass with the National Guards." The corporal became embarrassed and intimidated. "Sir," said he, "if it be so, I cannot command; you must take my place." The King consented. He led out, commanded, and returned with the patrol.

When Britain the gloomy memorial was tracing Or all that misdeed to her destiny wrought, O'er seas that betray, and of counsels obscuring, The Pass—Britain's misdeeds and Ebers' shield, O'er the sea that spirit despise exist a night, When, basing the promise of glory and fame, She saw history write, With a pencil of rage, That she should be the victim of the Conqueror's Name, O'er the sea that still proudly flourish, Most freedom in thee find her deadliest foe, The spirit exclaim, "On her shrine must she perish, And there be the hand to lay history low." O'er her bones be known, and immortal their lot, For patriot purity hallow'd their fame; In their wreaths there was not One dishonouring spot, O'er the sea that still proudly flourish, The Conqueror's Name, The land of thy birth, like an integrate's land, And a people the people whose progress you find, There, there, was the project for hallow'd dwelling, The Pass—Britain's misdeeds and Ebers' shield, At the bottom of the throne that has touch'd to a man, The ambition of a man that has touch'd to a man, See the laurel again, Free from birth and from stain, May proudly engrave—the Conqueror's Name.

On Tuesday, the 21st instant, a grand Cricket Match was played in the Castle lawn, between 11 Members of the Kilkenny Cricket Club, and 11 Officers of the 21st Fusiliers, which was won by the former in a single Innings. We subjoin a statement of the game:

THE CONQUEROR'S NAME.

On Friday night a skirnish took place, near Pevensey, between a party of smugglers and the coast blockade, when one of the former was shot dead on the spot, a ball having passed through his head. The name of the deceased is Robert Clarke; he was 25 years of age, and a native of Kilkenny, in this county. Verdict—"Justifiable Homicide."—Brighton Guardian.

It is a remarkable fact that William III., with a difference of his own judgment in such matters, but little seen in our days, actually delegated to an Episcopal Commission all the church preferments within the gift of the Crown; and Military Kings and Military Premiers have very different notions.

It is confidently stated that Baron Von Humboldt is preparing for a fresh visit to the New World. The wife of a journeyman carpenter in Exeter, named Jones, was, on Monday last, delivered of three children; on a former occasion she had given birth to twins.

It is mentioned in the Qualifications that the Duke of Bourbon, Prince of Condé, did not die by his own hand, as was at first reported. Strong facts are mentioned to prove that he was assassinated.

Lord Francis Leveson Gower, the present Secretary at War, is in a half-pay Ensign of the 17th Regiment. His Lordship entered the army the 17th January, 1822, and was placed on the half-pay list in the 14th February, 1823.

Surgeon GOSS (from London) is now in Dublin, and may be consulted every day (Sunday excepted), Personally or by Letter, at No. 11, Upper North Gloucester-street, from Nine in the Morning until Two; and, on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, from Six in the Evening until Nine.

IN the Morning of Life, when the handshakes of passion "take the reason prisoner," it is an evil more to be lamented than wondered at, in the vortex of decrepescence, the unhappy traitor against the laws of nature pays in lonely disappointment a fearful exaction for his rebellion, in the compromise of his mental as well as bodily powers. To all persons so circumstanced as to require the professional aid of men of experience, whose time has been for twenty years studiously and successfully devoted to the complaints arising from nervous debility, whether natural or acquired, GOSS and Co. offer the most consolatory assurances. The youth who has been prostrated by the strange fascinating passions, which the poor victim of folly will too readily comprehend without further description, may find relief from his misery, and be kindly taught to regain his lost place in the scale of creation. The sufferer, who, from another source, may find a certain restoration, and finally, in cases where the delay of a conjugal strife has almost extended disappointment to despair, they offer to the married couple those hopes which she can reasonably appreciate.

GOSS and Co. are to be consulted, or visited, every day, at their house, and Patients in Dublin, and the remotest parts of Ireland, can be treated successfully on describing minutely the case, and enclosing a remittance for Advice and Medicine, with difficulty and success, as the medicines will be securely packed, and carefully protected from observation.
