A SINGULAR CASE.—It may be mentioned as a historical singularity, that all the English Kings who married French Princesses incurred the displeasure of their subjects, and suffered violent deaths; as Edward II., Richard II., Henry VI., and Charles I.

A recourse to arms, which are called the ultima ratio of Kings, seems to be reversed in the case of modern Monarchs, who use that first, which justice and humanity, common sense and public duty, alike point to as only to be resorted to in cases of overwhelming necessity.

THE MARQUIS OF ANGLESEY has returned to London very unexpectedly. He has had a more severe attack of tic-douloureux than he has ever yet had. Since then the gullant Lord is removed from his bed to a sofa, and from the sofa to his bed again.

THEATRE-ROYAL, DUBLIN.—The winter campaign commenced on last Monday, in Fishamble-street, Dublin. The house has been fitted up in a light, tasteful manner—the mouldings of the ceiling, boxes, and proscenium, newly gilt and burnished; the whole producing a lively and agreeable effect.

The ex-King of France receives with great cordiality, though not without some symptoms of unnecessary parade, such of the neighbouring gentry who call upon him. One Dorsetshire Squire, it is said, on leaving the ex-Royal presence, seeing Charles's hand held out to him, unwittingly gave it a hearty shake, not knowing that it was only intended for him to kiss.

The writer of the political article in Blackwood's Magazine for the present month observes that the whole machinery of the late tremendous insurrection at Paris may perhaps never be known; yet it is very probable that the impeached Ministers, unless they see cause to sell their secret exposures for the price likely to be offered by the new Government, may throw much light upon the past, in the course of their own defence.

From the recent discoveries of the revolutionary use of paving stones, we conclude that all despotic monarchs will for the future macadamize their cities.—Court Journal.

A COSTLY VIOLIN.—Count Von Trautmannsdorf, Master of the Horse in Bohemia to the Emperor Charles VI., purchased a violin made by Jacob Stainer, on the following conditions.—To pay down £35; to give him annually a gold-laced coat, and, daily, a good dinner, with a quart of wine, besides two casks of beer per annum for common use—to provide him with lodging, fuel, and light—to pay him 18s a month; and, in case he should take a wife unthemselves, to give him twelve bushels of fruit every year; besides six bushels of fruit for his old nurse so long as she should live, and as many hares as he might call for. The seller lived 10 years after the purchase, and the violin cost the purchaser, in consequence, a sum of no less than £808 1s. 2d. The instrument is now in the possession of M. Fraenzel, Maître de Concert, at Mannheim.—Athenian.

ANECDOTE OF CHARLES THE TENTH.—A painter, not long since, had completed a piece, descriptive of a celebrated battle gained by the French, when the Bourbons were neither kings nor generals, and applied for permission to exhibit it in the Louvre. His Majesty desired the picture to be brought to him, when perceiving the tri-colored flag to be the banner under which the victory was achieved, he peremptorily ordered the artist to efface this symbol of rebellion, and replace it with the spotless banner of legitimacy; in which case alone it could find admission with the walls of the Louvre. His Majesty's desire was, however, not complied with, and the painting, of course, rejected. Had the artist introduced the white flag, and substituted Charles the Tenth for Napoleon Buonaparte, as General in Chief at the battle of Austerlitz, his work would have instantly been admitted.—Frascati's; or, Scenes at Paris.

At Abbeyside, near Dunganary, in this County, there is now living a tailor, named John Mahony, who has attained the advanced age of 94 years, and who still stitches away without spectacles, as merrily as he did 80 years ago!!!

The Noble Premier seems to be afflicted with a kind of alopecia oporaria, having apparently an insuperable dislike to appoint a Bishop—or is the dislike as has been hinted, in another quarter, where land-rats and water-rats are said to be alike obnoxious?—Morning Herald.

Lulworth Castle is quite inadequate to contain its present occupants with any comfort. Among other shifts and inconveniences to which the party are driven is that of the principal drawing-room being partitioned off with common boards into three sleeping-rooms.

How TO CONFER HONOUR AND MAKE FREE.—A short time since the Duchess of Angoulême and part of her suite made a morning call at the mansion of Mr. —, not many miles from Lulworth, when the Duchess seeing some drawings on the table, after admiring them very much, rolled them up very quietly, adding, "I shall take these, to which the English females had too much politeness to object."

MEDICAL PRECEPTS.—The foundation of a flourishing maturity and healthful old age may be easily laid; and it does appear to us that the basis is decidedly the province of the guardians and tutors of young persons. Proper explanations of the causes which create disease and shorten life, enforced by the judicious blending of such examples as are best calculated to impress the memory, awaken the fears, or excite the disgust of the pupil, could not be otherwise than productive of a beneficial change in the habits of the rising generation.—God's Works. These publications contain much valuable information, and, as they abound with extracts will show, deserve the serious attention of every one interested in the particular subjects that are there so amply discussed.—London Evening Paper. Surgeon Goss is now in Dublin.—(See advertisement.)

AVAILING ourselves of the opportunity presented to approach your Excellency we beg leave to express our pleasure which we feel at your Grace's presence among us, and we regard it as particularly gratifying at the present time, inasmuch as it affords us an opportunity of testifying our Loyalty and Affection to his Grace's Majesty WILLIAM THE FOURTH, who once visited our City, as a sovereign of his King and Country, and whom we yet hope to receive in it as the exalted Monarch of a Loyal and Devoted People.

Your Grace's acceptance of the Office of Lord Lieutenant of Ireland was hailed with admiration and joy by the good People, which your Excellency extended toward this Country, and we now desire to express the united satisfaction with which we have witnessed the impartial and consistent course of Government, by which your Grace's administration of the Affairs of all Classes of persons has been carried into effect.

We beg your Excellency to accept the Assurance of our Esteem and Respect, and we tender our best Wishes for your Health and Happiness. RICHARD J. HOBSON, Archbishop. THE ANSWER. I am particularly gratified by the obliging manner in which, on behalf of the Very Rev. the Dean and Chapter of the Cathedral of Waterford, you have welcomed my arrival at the episcopal mansion of a Noble Family, one of whose illustrious Members presided with you at the late Anniversary of the Anniversary of the Ecclesiastical Establishment to which you belong.

It will be incumbent on me to impart to His Most Gracious Majesty your assurances of Loyalty and Attachment to his Sacred Person and Government, as well as those pleasing reminiscences which you still entertain of the earlier years of His Majesty's Life, which were so honourably devoted to the Naval Service of the Country.

I fear, Gentlemen, that in your kindness to myself, you have overrated my humble exertions for the tranquillity and welfare of Ireland.—But I think I may fairly claim the Merit of good Intentions of Impartiality—and of an earnest desire to do Justice to all Classes and descriptions of the King's Subjects.

Accept, Gentlemen, the Assurance of my esteem, and of my fervent wishes for the Permanence and increasing Utility of the National Church. TO HIS GRACE THE LORD PRIMATE OF ALL IRELAND. The Address of the Dean and Chapter and Clergy of the City of Waterford.

ERRATUM IN MR. O'CONNELL'S LETTER TO DR. SHEEHAN.—For "strike but men," read "strike but here."

The Waterford Chronicle.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1830.

The London Journals of Monday were received at the Chronicle office last night—the following are extracts:

HOLLAND AND BELGIUM.

We have received this morning Dutch Papers to the last instant, from which we extract a very meagre account of the proceedings of the States-General.

SECOND CHAMBER OF THE STATES-GENERAL.

THE HAGUE, SEPT. 29.—The debate on the two questions proposed in the Royal message of Sept. 13, were continued yesterday in the general committee, and concluded in the evening, having lasted till nine o'clock.

Several members delivered their opinions more or less in detail. We understand that the deputies from the Southern provinces no longer insisted on a complete and total separation; which, however, is asserted to be the most ardent wish of the Belgians.

We learn from Frankfort that the German Diet has lately taken into consideration the communications that have arisen in several towns in Germany, and especially in that of Brunswick.

ENGLISH AND FOREIGN FUNDS ON MONDAY.

CITY, Two o'Clock.—The variety of news this morning puzzled the speculators at the Stock Exchange.

DINNER TO MR. O'CONNELL.

We are much gratified in having to announce to our readers that it is the intention of the patriotic citizens of Waterford to entertain their County Member at a Public Dinner, immediately on his arrival in this City.

THE EVENING POST AT ITS DIRTY WORK AGAIN.

Speaking of the different States contiguous to Belgium, it asks, "Will those nations allow, will it be for the interest of Europe, or for its own, that it should maintain its independence?"

The debate being concluded, the Chamber proceeded to the vote on the two questions. The result of which was, that the first question, relative to the alteration of the fundamental law, was announced in the affirmative by a majority of 50 votes to 44, six members not having voted.

The second question, relative to the separation of the two parts of the kingdom, was also carried in the affirmative by a majority of 50 to 43 votes, two members having declined voting; there were 100 members present.

The Chamber then resolved to send the royal message, with its announcement to the First Chamber.

With the exception of Antwerp, and perhaps Maestricht, there is no considerable place in the power of the government. Ghent, which was one of the last in which the popular feeling displayed itself, fell into the hands of the people on the last of September.

The Belgian troops in many places have accepted service under the Provisional Government, and in many others have refused to fight against the people. On the other hand, the people of the country follow or rival the example of the people of the towns, send assistance in men and stores, to the cities which are threatened, and begin to take active measures for interrupting the communications and otherwise annoying the royal army.

IRELAND AND BELGIUM.

Under this head we copied from the Atlas into the Chronicle of last Saturday, an article characterised by as gross ignorance and as great presumption as we have ever discovered in any thing which has been written relative to Ireland.

We are happy that the feeling against an interference of foreign powers with Belgium, appears to be strong both in France and England. An accommodation of matters between the Government and the people is not, however, still hope, impossible. But whatever comes, let the voice of the people of England be raised against interference.

PRUSSIA.

A letter from Berlin arrived yesterday, which contains curious particulars on the present state of that capital and on that of public opinion in Prussia. The singular commotion of the tailors, after having occasional meetings, which lasted for three days, in a very peaceable manner as concerned the multitude, in spite of the cries or rather the proposals of liberty and the constitution, and which have been dispersed with much moderation by the armed force, seems to have impressed on all minds an unusual movement, which lasts at the moment when I am now writing.

LATEST NEWS FROM THE CONTINENT.

It is reported that an insurrection has broken out at Warsaw, and that the Polish army has mutinied. The intelligence was brought by an English traveller coming from Poland, but it should be received with caution.

The Journal des Debats affirms that the rumour of the Duke de Montebello not having been graciously received at Madrid is unfounded.

A letter from Rome announces that M. de Montequien, the French envoy charged to notify the accession of Louis Phillip, has been graciously received by the Pope. A diplomatic answer is to be given to the notification of the French Government.

The French General Kreuzinger arrived at Vienna on the 21st ult., charged with a message by Charles X. to solicit of the Emperor permission to choose a residence in the Austrian States.

M. Garde, a member of the Provisional Government of Brussels, arrived yesterday morning at Paris. He is said to have been sent on a mission.

We learn from Frankfort that the German Diet has lately taken into consideration the communications that have arisen in several towns in Germany, and especially in that of Brunswick.

The Diet threatens to employ at Brunswick the military interference of the Confederation in support of the rights of the legitimate sovereign, if those rights should be found to be compromised. The Diet is deliberating on new measures for the restriction of the Press.

THE EVENING POST AT ITS DIRTY WORK AGAIN.

Speaking of the different States contiguous to Belgium, it asks, "Will those nations allow, will it be for the interest of Europe, or for its own, that it should maintain its independence?"

The debate being concluded, the Chamber proceeded to the vote on the two questions. The result of which was, that the first question, relative to the alteration of the fundamental law, was announced in the affirmative by a majority of 50 votes to 44, six members not having voted.

The second question, relative to the separation of the two parts of the kingdom, was also carried in the affirmative by a majority of 50 to 43 votes, two members having declined voting; there were 100 members present.

The Chamber then resolved to send the royal message, with its announcement to the First Chamber.

With the exception of Antwerp, and perhaps Maestricht, there is no considerable place in the power of the government. Ghent, which was one of the last in which the popular feeling displayed itself, fell into the hands of the people on the last of September.

The Belgian troops in many places have accepted service under the Provisional Government, and in many others have refused to fight against the people. On the other hand, the people of the country follow or rival the example of the people of the towns, send assistance in men and stores, to the cities which are threatened, and begin to take active measures for interrupting the communications and otherwise annoying the royal army.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

Our readers may not, perhaps, be generally aware that the Foreign Journals are received at the Waterford Chronicle office on the same days that they are received in the City of Dublin, there being but two direct points of communication between England and Ireland, to and from which the Government packets convey the mails and newspapers. Those points of communication are Holyhead to Howth, near Dublin, and Milford to Danmore, in this County.

WELLINGTON ECONOMY.

The Dictator has had the poor clerks turned out of their situations in many of the public departments in England and Ireland, for the most part unprovided for, while his own family retain places under the Government which produce them very little short of one hundred thousand pounds a year—while one hundred and fifty-four borough-mongers and privy councillors are receiving of the public money near two millions a year, for which the labour done by many of them is not worth the pence per annum—while a blunted and overgrown Church Establishment is wringing from the very vitals of the people their means of existence—while a standing army is unnecessarily kept up—while an unconstitutional gendarmerie is organizing in London at an immense expense to the people; and while that harpy crew which are draining the life's blood of the community, and dealing what they cannot destroy, have not relinquished of their demands on the public treasury a single shilling.

LORD BERESFORD GOING TO BELGIUM.

The Courier says there is a report that Lord Beresford has gone to the Netherlands to effect a reconciliation between the parties. If Lord Beresford has gone to Belgium at the beck of his master the Dictator, it is not, we are quite sure, for the purpose of effecting a reconciliation, but as a diplomatic spy, and the Belgians would do well to beware of him.

SEARCH FOR ARMS IN THE COUNTY KERRY.

A contemporary states that there has been a search for arms in the County of Kerry. Under what Act of Parliament it is that a man's house can be entered by Magistrates or Police, to deprive him of those arms which may be necessary for his defence? The law provides that, if a person keeps arms without registering them, he is liable to a pecuniary fine; but if a man may be deprived of his arms, in a summary way, this legislative precaution of registry and filing would seem to be quite superfluous.

THE DICTATOR'S POLITENESS.

When he was invited to attend the funeral of Mr. HICKS, he said he would feel very great pleasure in going to the funeral but that his public engagements would prevent his being at Liverpool in time for that purpose.

COUNTY OF WATERFORD AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The annual show was held on Monday last, at Ballybricken. It consisted of Bulls, Oxen, Cows, Heifers, Swine, Horses, and Farming Utensils, of every description. In the evening, the principal members, with a number of respectable farmers, dined together at Pownall's Hotel—Lord EBRASCOS in the Chair. In the course of the evening some good speeches were delivered at the meeting, which broke up at 11 o'clock.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE.

Of the Waterford Agricultural Society for the Grand Meeting of Subscribers, held in Waterford on the 11th October, 1830.

On proceeding to report the progress made by the Society within the past year, your committee will take the liberty to say that the year which we are about to address you on, has been a very successful one, and that the pleasure they so fully anticipated when they addressed you.

A meeting in March last was from accidental circumstances not so well attended as we had hoped, but we notwithstanding, your committee had much reason to be satisfied with the proceedings. Sixteen persons were present, and the work that was done, particularly by the ladies, was highly creditable; a great interest was excited, and the spirit of emulation so much to be desired, was fully aroused. As an instance of the good feeling which prevailed, the circumstance of one man who was named in the report of the committee, with every other name, being a member of the Society, and the impossibility of his not attending, that could be approved of, and we were not at all afraid, for he never saw any advantage to be gained from these new-fashioned things. He, however, did not attend, and it is not till now that we have been enabled to ascertain the cause of the omission. He was, we are told, prevented from attending by the illness of his wife, and it is not till now that we have been enabled to ascertain the cause of the omission.

ANNIVERSARY OF THE LATE RIGHT REV. DR. KELLY.

This day is the anniversary of the late respectable Prelate's translation to that state, we could not but feel that he merited by his apostolic labours. There has not been living, in the memory of man, a Prelate more venerated in his country than the late Dr. KELLY, nor one who has ever died in it so much lamented. He taught by his inspiring example, the practical utility of discharging the spiritual duties of the Ecclesiastical and the temporal duties of the Citizen. The merit of his character as a Minister of Religion was elevated by a native benignity of manner, which rendered the system of his Clergy and his flock, and commanded even the respect of his enemies. A man correct ecclesiastical, or a more ardent and undisciplined patriot, has not exercised in Ireland the high functions of a Catholic Prelate for the last century.

MR. GALLAGHER, THE VENTRILOQUIST.

Mr. GALLAGHER appeared in his usual character on Tuesday night, and we regretted to perceive that he had a severe cold, which prevented him from giving some of his extraordinary imitations in Ventriloquism, and which has also obliged him to postpone his intended entertainment for next Friday night to the following Wednesday, on which occasion, we understand, he comes forward, encouraged by the most distinguished patronage in the City and County. The excellent band of the 50th Regiment will attend on that evening, which is to be his farewell appearance in this City.
