PROVINCE OF ULSTER.

Inspector General's Observations on the Entire Province of Ulster.

The annexed statement exhibits a very satisfactory improvement in the state of the Province of Ulster.

The number of offences of a political or insurrectionary class has decreased from 169 to 117, viz.—about one third.

In the character of the offences there is a corresponding degree of improvement; but the most satisfactory circumstances connected with the change is the fearlessness with which the peasantry now come forward to denounce and prosecute their assailants before the Petty Sessions and other legal tribunals—a fact which can only be imputed to an increased confidence in the government, the law, and the authorities.

The temporary cessation of agitation may proceed from a fear of the renewal of the Coercion Bill; but the circumstances which have adverted, viz. the boldness with which informations are now given against Whiteboy offenders, can only be produced by a well founded confidence in the efficacy of that measure for the protection of the peaceable and well disposed against illegal combination.

J. HARVEY, Inspector General.

PROVINCE OF CONNAUGHT.

Inspector General's Observations on the Entire Province of Connaught.

Agricultural pursuits at this season of the year afford the peasantry in most parts of my district ample employment. Illicit distillation is in general decreasing through out the province, attributable to the increased price of grain, and the peasantry being otherwise engaged.

I think I am justified in stating that my district is generally peaceful, and with a prospect of continuing so.

(Signed) GEU. WARBURTON, Inspector General.

A new piece of winding, or exaction of money under false pretences, is now being practised in Paris. A few days ago a gentleman passing near the Palais Royal was accosted by an individual who together unknown to him, who insisted upon having paid a debt of 3000.

The pretended creditor stated that he was waiting for want of food, whilst the gentleman upon whom he made the demand was indebted to him 5000. The crowd showed such alarming symptoms of this supposed injustice, that the gentleman was glad to get off by paying 100 to the claimant. On Saturday a similar trick was successfully played off on two other persons in the Rue Richelieu.

MALIBRE.—The opines of the most eminent counsel being that the report made by the attorney and solicitor-general in Ireland as to the custom, admiralty, and royalties of Malahide, was groundless and erroneous in point of law, the case is now referred to one of the principal government officers for re-inquiry, preparatory to final discussion and decision.—London Paper.

The Mississippi Valley, which but a few years since was a howling wilderness, inhabited only by savages, and tenanted by prey, now contains nearly 5,000,000 civilised inhabitants, about 2,000,000 more than the whole population of these United States, at the memorable era of our national independence.—Pittsburgh Manufacturer.

GRANT SALARY OF UNREDEEMED PLEDGES.

Lord Palmerston's honor, pledged three years ago to effect a "speedy and final settlement" of the Belgian question. (N.B.—Damaged from having been laid by on long.)

Lord Russell's word to Dissenters to satisfy all their claims.

Ditto—Word to church to protect all its privileges.

Ditto—Word to reward any one who has read Don Carlos. (N.B.—First article is only recently forfetched; the second was not worth rereading, and the last is irredeemable.)

EARL GRAY—His character, pledged nearly four years ago, to disregard self and family, and attend only to the interests of the public.

Lord Grey's honor—His solemn declaration, pledged more than thirty years ago, to renounce himself, his own becoming Haunbald, and to follow the star of his country eternal hatred to England. (N.B.—It is supposed that this lot will be withdrawn, being utterly worthless.)

Ditto—His signature pledged to the dissolution of the Deanery of Down; subsequently given undivided to his son, a very reserved Hamish.

Lord Devonport—His word pledged to disregard patronage.

Ditto—His word, pledged some years ago, to prove the Earl of Eldon an ignorant and injurious judge.

Ditto—His word, pledged on a Friday in November, 1830, in the House of Commons, that he had nothing to do; would have nothing to do, with Earl Grey's Administration; and taking his seat in the House of Lords on the Monday following as Lord Chancellor.

Lord Althorpe—Pledged made at various times, and in different places, to repeat the word "Asses and Oxen"; the inhabitants of Cambridge being discharged immediately after his election.

Mr. POLLETT THOMPSON—Pledge to further the honor and interests of any party who may hire him as cad, and to beg Collett regrets that he cannot give a more extended catalogue; but the task would be endless and uninteresting if he were to attempt even to classify the immense quantity of rubbish which various "Spouters" have pledged. They will be sold in lots for whatever they may fetch, it being absolutely necessary that the premises should be cleared, in order that they be cleaned and purified, for the safety and well-being of the neighbourhood.—Jigs.

Act may be altered or amended.

It is a striking illustration of the contradictory nature of the spirit of the times, that the very men who profess to be endeavouring to abolish imprisonment for debt, are, at the same time, the most strenuous advocates for the New Poor Bill, which, it has been aptly observed, is intended principally to legalize imprisonment for poverty.

The Swedish Captain Leadbecker, who was recently condemned to death in Sweden for the publication of an article, in which he reproached the King with having assumed to himself the monopoly of the theatre, had addressed a letter to a Stockholm journal, in which he positively declared that he will not memorial the King for pardon.

END OF THE WHIGS.

(FROM CORBETT'S REGISTER.)

NORMANDY, JULY 10, 1834.—The news that has reached me to-day, has not at all surprised me. I always said, that if Lord Althorpe were to quit his place, Lord Grey could not remain in his hour. He was the soul of the concern, and he has appeared to me to have been weary of the concern for a long time. The excuse for the breaking up of this ministry is a mere excuse. It is no one thing that has broken them up; it is the mass of difficulties, that mass, however, greatly added to by the mixture of landnaut and brandy, with a due sple of natural insanity, and a twofold surplus of jaw. No ministry on earth would bear up against this; it is the true receipt for destroying a ministry and destroying a state. The people wanted a parliamentary reform, in order that it might ease them of their intolerable burdens. They prayed for a reform on that ground, and on that ground only. They did not want it for purposes to pull down the church; for anything about corporations; and, above all things, they did not want it, in order that the poor, the wretched, the suffering people, might be stripped of their rights, and suffer to starve. They never contemplated an overturning of any institution whatsoever; and above all things they did not contemplate the creating of bands of homicidians to add to their burdens, and to make lying reports to parliament their character. They did not ask for reform, that 20 millions of money might be granted to be given to mortgagees of West India estates. In short, they wanted a reform for precisely those things which the reformed parliament has refused to do. This is, however, a horrible breaking up for the hands of liberals, who are cramming their pockets by the means of Comptrolnerships. What is to become of Wood, emphatically called John? And there is Pitt-Rivers Parker? What is to become of the swarms of Poor-law commissioners and Church Commissioners? What is to become of Tuffnell and Johnston? If they had carried their scheme into execution so far as to have built one work-house, they might all have been shut up in it, and been clothed at the public expense, in workhouse dresses. I do believe, that if this ministry had remained in power quietly another two years, they would not have left us one single rig of English law to protect us. They seemed resolved to root out every law and every custom to which the people are most attached. They lent a willing ear to every projector whose object was to destroy any part of the old government of the country. We wanted none of their projects; we wanted our burdens to be lightened, and they took care not to do that. However, though it was excessively foolish in Lord Grey to have anything to do with Brougham; though, as I told Lord Grey, when he formed his ministry, that that step was sure to be fatal to him; though his difficulties have been greatly added to by the projects of this man; still I acknowledge, that it was impossible to go on with the present system; I mean system of taxation and expenditure. No man can overcome this difficulty; that system must be changed; in one word, my opinion is, that there must be a reduction of the interest of the debt, of the army, navy, and dead-weight expenditures; or that this form of government will be destroyed by a convulsive revolution. The nation is cured of all the nonsense about Whig and Tory. Whoever are Ministers, if they ease the burdens of the people, they will stand; if they do not they will come down. Sir James Graham and Mr. Stanley resigned, not upon the particular ground that was alleged; but because they saw the difficulties too great to get along with. They saw no chance of giving satisfaction to the people. They found themselves deluged by such a torrent of quackery, flowing overabundantly from that rabidest Scotch brain, that they were glad to wade out, and get to something like land on any terms. If there were a ministry ready and willing to set seriously to work to lighten the burdens of the people and to encourage them to hope for better days, they will be supported, let them be called what they may. What may happen, no man can tell; worse than that which was taking place, cannot well come. The bills before the House of Commons, and one just passed by it, must, if passed by the Lords, have produced most dreadful consequences. From these consequences we shall probably escape. At any rate I am glad of a change; because it takes power out of the hands of Brougham; and because it must break up his bands of delving commissioners; and must put a stop to the scandalous job of emigration.

PORTSMOUTH, JULY 9.

A brig under Russian colours, called the Carolus, arrived last night in company with the Rolls, with 136 of Don Carlos's party, and 22 domestic on board; there was another brig left Lisbon with a cargo of the same party, but parted company with sea; it is expected they will proceed to Hamburg. The Carolus came into harbour to-day. His Majesty's cutter Speedy, Lieut. Norrington, arrived from a cruise to the eastward, and came into harbour. The Norfolk, convict ship, with 250 convicts on board, which sailed on Monday last, put back, having found some defects in her rudder; the convicts were put on board this morning, and the ship taken into dock to repair damage. His Majesty's ship, the Princess Charlotte, was taken into dock this morning to be examined and repaired.

THE NEWSMAN'S DINNER.

Yesterday, according to annual custom, the Newsman held their anniversary festival at the White Conduit-house. About 300 persons sat down to an excellent dinner, served up in good style by Mr. Bowles, the split-eared proprietor. The whole expense was borne by the proprietors of the London Morning, Evening, and Weekly Newspapers. The usual appurtenant songs and toasts were given, and the "Liberty of the Press" was received with nine rounds of applause. After dinner several of the company proceeded to the gardens to participate of the sports of the season, and small clusters were seen indulging in recesses of the garden. A ball took place in the evening, and was graced by the daughters of the newspapers. The utmost harmony pervaded the whole company.—True Sun of Friday.

PORTUGAL.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

LISBON, JULY 1.—The state of Don Pedro's health is beginning to excite some alarm. The Emperor's disorder is pulmonary, and it is said to be a great measure the consequence of a fall from his horse while in the Brazil. The fatigue he has undergone must like wise have had a great share in bringing him to his present condition, which is one of considerable debility.

The Duke de Palmella has had several private meetings with Bliva Carvalho on the subject, as it is believed, of the Regency to be appointed in case the increased indisposition of the Emperor should disable him from attending to public affairs. This is a very important point, and ought to be settled at once; for the sudden death of Pedro would leave everything in confusion.

During the last two days the roar of cannon has been almost incessant upon the water. What with visits from Admiral Parker to Admiral Gage, and Lord Admiral Parker to Admiral Gage, and the French Commodore to Lord Howard de Walden, the Consul, the Postmaster General, Admiral, &c., I say those that not less than a ton of powder has been converted into noise and smoke. Our own Consul, Mr. Smyth, arrived here yesterday in the African steamer.

This day's Chronicle contains a long dispatch from the Governor of Goa (in India). Don Manoel de Portugal, to the Minister of Marine, stating that as soon as he learnt from the English papers that Lisbon had been entered by the Constitutional troops, he hastened to proclaim the Queen's authority with all the necessary solemnities, and accompanied demonstrations of joy. This is accompanied by the copy of an equally long response of the circumstances that compelled him in 1829 to declare for Don Miguel, which amounts to this, that the colony from its weakness must necessarily submit to whatever Government chances to be appointed in the mother country. If this exception be admitted for his conduct on that occasion, what assurance is there that his prompt submission in this instance is not an effect of the same necessity?

We have had the Duke of Portland here for some days in his yacht. His Grace's presence has added much to the consumption of grape-water to which I have alluded. Lady Howard de Walden is arrived. The town is tolerably quiet, which is attributed to the employment of the regular troops as police.

The Dukes de Cadaval and Lafões are residing on the estate of the former at Magosa, on the Tagus, 50 miles above Lisbon. The people of the surrounding districts bring all Migueletes they are perfectly safe.—Courier.

THE CHANCELLOR AND THE COERCION BILL.

Lord Brougham, whom we may always expect to see far and in every part, has just made a speech in his objections to the renewal of the political clause of the Coercion Act, and was answered by the Chancellor with a poor sophistry. Lord Brougham contends that because the liberties of the peasantry are infringed, the liberties of the people of towns must be infringed—because the peasantry may not be absent from their cottages after dark, the people in towns are not to be permitted to hold meetings—that is really to say, because the measure promises where there is the evil to be grappled with, it is to press where the evil does not exist, for pretrial and post political agitation was the plan for the passing of the Coercion Bill, and no case of coaction between pre-trial and political agitation has ever been made out by Ministers. The argument of Lord Brougham is well illustrated by a story of Walter Scott. A magistrate having ordered a rogue to be confined in the stocks, saw to his surprise two prisoners, one in each of the stocks at each of his gate posts. Upon asking the constable for an explanation, the fellow—a very Brougham in his ideas of uniformity—said he thought it awkward to see a man in the stocks on one side of the gate while there was none on the other, and so for the sake of uniformity, he laid hold of the first man he met with and clipped him in the vacant stocks. Thus Lord Brougham, because the people of the country are in the Coercion Stocks, must stick the people of the towns in the Coercion Stocks, lest the infringement of the constitution should want uniformity.

The Chancellor would have argued consistently with the principles of the government of which he makes a part, that the political enactments were good because they are wanted infractions of the constitution, for Ministers declared on introducing the bill that its safety consisted in the enormous extent of invasion of the constitution, which made it impossible that it could be drawn into precedent. There seems, indeed, no occasion now for precedent; for the tyranny has every promise of permanency.—London Examiner.

SINGULAR CIRCUMSTANCES.

Last week, as the widow of Sir George Duckett, formerly a banker, and a bankrupt, who died some time back, while looking over the deceased husband's papers, found a receipt for East India stock to the amount of £2,000, upon which the dividends had been unpaid for eighty years, and which was of course, the property of Sir George. This she handed to the assignees of the estate, who are thereby enabled to obtain upwards of £30,000 towards a further dividend. Had this sum, with its accumulating dividends, been put out at compound interest, it would have paid more than 200 in the pound on the estate of the bankrupt. NOTICE. As there will be several persons coming to the Assizes next week, who are owing accounts to the Waterford Chronicle establishment, it is requested they will condescend to pay their respective accounts.

The Waterford Chronicle. TUESDAY, JULY 15, 1834.

No foreign news of any interest. A split is rumoured in the French cabinet. We suppose it will shortly fall to pieces like our own late incapable and tyrannous administration.

Don Carlos has quitted England, on board the United Kingdom, armed steamer, for Spain. He is accompanied by several of the followers who attended him to England.

The change of Ministry has created much excitement in the British money market. The closing price of consols on Saturday was 92.

THE MINISTRY.

Nothing has been as yet decided as to who is to be the new Premier. It is a rather extraordinary circumstance that the Lord Chancellor and his colleagues retain their places after the resignation of the Premier. We believe this circumstance is without parallel or precedent.

THE COERCION ACT.

Lord Grey was the avowed proponent of this flagitious law, and by a wise dispensation of providence, it was the rock on which his leopards, despotic, and wicked administration was wrecked.

the total extinction of that abominable tax and conscience! Such has been the economy—such has been the fulfilment of their pledges—What a face of brass must the Chancellor (for we see he sticks to place) have to dare to panegyric himself and his late colleagues for a consistent adherence to their pledges, when every man in the empire must have known that no ministry ever betrayed so reckless and profligate a disregard of solemn promises, as that which last week crumbled to dust beneath the weight of its own overwhelming rottenness and incapacity.

REPRESENTATION OF WATERFORD.

This City and County have much cause to rejoice in their selection of representatives, at the last election. Sir Richard Krane has not taken his seat this session; Mr. Dalrymple has preferred remaining at Dungarvan for the purpose of forming an anti-republican on the constituency of that borough, to fulfilling his pledges in St. Stephen's; Mr. Christy is supporting his own party, the Conservatives, diligently and faithfully, and Mr. H. W. Barron is either voting with ministers, or absenting himself on occasions when the people required his support.

THE DEFUNCT MINISTRY.

By this time the friends of popular freedom, not only in the British Empire, but on the Continent of Europe, will have learned with joy and exultation the gratifying intelligence that the "last and plainer" Cabinet of Lord Grey is for ever demolished—that it fell to pieces, not from any violent shock from without, but from its intrinsic corruption.

MONAGHAN ELECTION.

We fear the liberal sitting member will be unseated; for though Mr. Winters is not a Radical, still in every respect is preferable to the half-Whig-half-Tory, Lucas. The committee have determined that joint tenants under one lease have not a right to vote.

THE TOLERANT DON PEDRO!

We have seen a gentleman on "Change, who has come by the Royal Mail, from Lisbon. He declares that a priest is to be seen in the streets of Lisbon, and an order is soon expected to be issued that none be permitted to appear in their former parb—Sun.

THE LATE BISHOP DOYLE.

The solemn Catholic ceremony called a Mass for the repose of the soul of the virtuous and exemplary Doctor Doyle, will be celebrated at the Cathedral in Carlow, on Thursday next, the 17th instant.

REV. MR. QUINLAN—PARISH OF GOLDEN.

The worthy and pious rector of Golden, whose labours are interesting in the honorable work of his people's instruction and comfort, has, we learn, been aided by Mr. Mathew, Esq., of the place, distributed food to numbers of the poor in his parish.

EMIGRATION—Montreal Papers.

Mr. Barrett (the Editor of the Files) was liberated from Kilmatinham Jail on Monday week, after having suffered six months' imprisonment. He paid the fine of £100 which formed part of the sentence, and entered into securities for seven years.

On a very late occasion, Earl Mulgrave, a Whig, declared that "he cheerfully supported the Irish Coercion Act, although in 1819 he resisted a similar measure when proposed for England. The cause of difference was, the respect he had for the noble Earl at the head of the government."

THE EVENING MAIL.

An accident prevented our expressing the thanks we owe to the spirited conductor of this journal, on a former occasion. We seize with pleasure the opportunity which his last express gives us, of paying an instalment of the debt due to our enterprising contemporary.
