

(CONTINUED FROM THE CHRONICLE OF THURSDAY) 1—Mr. Cayley's motion for a select committee to inquire into the state of the currency, and the state of the currency, was rejected in the Commons, by a majority of 216 to 126.

24—Died at his house in Chancery-lane, Berkeley-square, John Earl of Clarendon, aged 80 years. The title is now extinct. His Lordship held the office of First Lord of the Admiralty, from 1794, to 1796.

AN OBITUARY OF THE ARISTOCRACY. (FROM THE COURT JOURNAL.) LORD BROMBY.—Died a few days since, having just completed his twenty-second year, Charles James, Viscount Bromby, only son of the Earl of Cornwallis.

SLAVE MARKET OF CONSTANTINOPLE. (FROM WILLIAMS'S PROCEEDINGS AT THE WEST.) We walked on in search of the Circassian beauties of the market. As the apartment in which they were upon the ground floor, I took a view of modest assistance, and approaching the window, I perceived the eyes with which I had been looking in vain hitherto for a pair of no ordinary beauty.

LOSS OF THE ENCHANTRESS. The following are the particulars of the wreck of the Enchantress, bound to Van Diemen's Land:—At about ten o'clock on Friday night, the 17th July, the vessel was proceeding up D'Entrecasteaux's Channel, with four wind.

TO THE ELECTORS OF WESTMINSTER. My dear friends, I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your kind letter of the 10th inst., and in reply to inform you that I have the honor to have received your kind letter of the 10th inst., and in reply to inform you that I have the honor to have received your kind letter of the 10th inst.

COLLEGE-STREET OFFICE. EXTRAORDINARY CASE.—HORRIBLE OUTRAGE.—Friday Mr. Macdonagh applied to the magistrates...

Mr. Gabbett.—He has succeeded in putting his horns in this case certainly. (Laughter.) Mr. Macdonagh continued:—On Christmas Day he procured a horse...

Mr. Gabbett: Mr. Macdonagh, you had better examine Mrs. M'Cué herself. This act, if true, is the most horrible I ever heard of. Mrs. M'Cué was sworn—She stated that Mr. Macdonagh did not tell her the cruelties which were inflicted on her...

FRANCE—OPENING OF THE CHAMBERS.

We have received the Paris papers of Tuesday, with a report of the opening of the Chambers, and the King's speech. The tone of this document, which we submit, is distinctly pacific.

"Gentlemen of the Chamber of Peers and the Chamber of Deputies. In seeing you again assembled around me, I am happy in having to congratulate myself with you upon the situation of our country.

I regret that the treaty of July 4, 1831, with the United States of America, has not been able yet to receive its complete execution.

"The situation of the finances is satisfactory; the public revenue is increasing by the sole effect of the general prosperity. The financial bills will be presented within a few days to the Chamber of Deputies."

"I hope, gentlemen, that the moment has arrived for France to gather the fruits of her prudence and courage. Enlightened by the past, let us profit by an experience so dearly purchased; let us apply ourselves to calm all minds, to render our laws perfect, and to protect by judicious measures all the interests of a nation which, after so many storms, holds up to the civilized world the salutary example of moderation; the only pledge of durable success."

"After the King had ceased, and silence was restored, the Home Minister read the oration, and the Deputies repeated, 'I swear.' His Majesty then retired."

REMOVED ATTEMPT ON THE LIFE OF THE KING. PARIS, TUESDAY, QUARTER FOUR.—It was reported on the House this afternoon that a plot had really been discovered for a new attempt on the King's life.

"There is no truth in the rumour. It is certain, however, that several arrests have taken place. A few minutes before the King left the Chamber of Deputies, a man of Bergeron, who was charged with firing the celebrated pistol shot on the 19th Nov., 1832, was arrested on the very spot he occupied on that occasion, and brought a prisoner to the Prefecture of Police."

THE SOUTHERN STATES OF THE NORTH AMERICAN UNION appear to be much disturbed. The New York Commercial Advertiser of the 1st, after stating some Cherokee had arrested a man of the name of Ross, adds:—

"Mr. John Howard Payne also, as gentleman well known to the literary world, has been accused under the sanction of his name of conspiring with Ross against the welfare of Georgia, and it is said that his papers give evidence of the fact. We have no precise information on the subject, but we fear that this gentleman has suffered injustice from the excited temper of the times."

Mr. Howard Payne is known in London as the author of Clari, Charles II., and other agreeable dramatic pieces, and his habits are certainly not those of a man fit for plots and conspiracies.

We have advices from Lisbon to the 26th ult. On the 25th two vessels sailed from Oporto to Spain, with troops, ammunition, &c., to reinforce the Constitutional army. Rumour then existed on the probability of a speedy change of Ministry.—Sun of Friday.

TITHHE AGITATION.

The near approach of the parliamentary session suggests the important consideration as to what grievances pass with greatest force upon the country.

"The feelings of the people or the gratifying situation of the country can continue if day after day they are subjected to the most ruinous and tyrannical species of plunder. A species of plunder the most unchristian and insupportable in its operation, and the most fruitful in its consequences that has ever demanded the immediate interference of the legislature."

"The latter case is the worse; in one instance his person, but not his understanding, may be insulted; in the other, under the mockery of law and justice, he is visited with a refined despotism which puts to shame the diminished enormities of the Russian Ukase or the Turkish bow-string."

"No; the man who has a spark of public or private virtue must feel that it is his duty to rise and lend his force in shaking off the frightful incubus that presses on the kingdom. He is oppressed according to law, therefore let him redress himself in the same manner."

"Will this be endured—will we ask, such a state of things be suffered to continue, while we have the means of redress in our own hands? The country is not deserving of freedom, if it neglects the proper means for obtaining its righteous claims."

THE MILFORD PACKETS. Owing to the inefficiency of those boats, the British mail of Friday—due here at two o'clock on Sunday—did not arrive here until 10 p.m. on Monday.

THE WEXFORD FREEMAN has extracted our report of the county Waterford meeting without acknowledgement.—This is not fair in our contemporary.

NEWFOUNDLAND. By the Three Sisters, arrived in our port, we have accounts from St. John's to the 10th of December. The statements respecting trade are favourable.

THE REGISTRY—QUEEN'S COUNTY. We have received some communications from the Queen's County. We wish that the substance of these letters was embodied in the official report of the Lord Lieutenant.

HEROISM REWARDED.

(From the Waterford Chronicle of Tuesday.) The heroic conduct of Patrick Coffey, who, at the imminent peril of his own life, succeeded in rescuing six of the crew of the Le Deu Saurs, from certain death, has been rewarded by a sum of £20, which was unanimously voted him on Wednesday last, at Lloyd's, at a general meeting of the sub-scribers.

Before Henry Baldwin, Esq., Assistant-Barrister, and a Bench of Magistrates. Mr. James Lowe was arraigned for an assault upon Edmond Dwyer, at Lansdowne, on the 21st May.

Mr. James Lowe was arraigned for an assault upon Edmond Dwyer, at Lansdowne, on the 21st May. The facts as stated by Dwyer were, that he had been appointed by Mr. Quinn as keeper of a distillery on the lands of Lansdowne, held by traverser and his brother, and that he (prosecutor) while tending in the capacity of a dog set at him by Mr. James Lowe, which did him serious bodily injury.

Patrick Murphy was convicted of assaulting Thomas Whelan, and received sentence of six weeks' imprisonment. Anne Farrell, and James and Michael Magrath were indicted for receiving an assault upon James Dwyer and his assistants; the female traverser and James Magrath were acquitted, but Michael Magrath was convicted and sentenced to two months' imprisonment.

THE COURT entered upon civil bills, which were below us a few days ago. The first of the kind tried in this County, the sum sought to be recovered was £4 12s. 3d. or 25 late currency, that being the outside limit allowed by the Act.

Against Mr. Moore's claim it was urged that the Reform Act militated against his being placed on the register, his supporter contending that no person should be entitled after the passing of the Act, to vote out of a right of freedom which would not have given him the privilege before the Act.

By the Three Sisters, arrived in our port, we have accounts from St. John's to the 10th of December. The statements respecting trade are favourable. Provisions are steady at recent quotations.

ELECTION OF MAYOR AND ALDERMEN OF LIVERPOOL. We (D. E. Post) have received the following gratifying letter from our Correspondent:—

LIVERPOOL, FRIDAY.—The election of Aldermen took place yesterday. Fifteen Reformers and one Tory have been chosen. Amongst the new Aldermen is Mr. Lyne (brother of the excellent member for the County of Dublin), who is one of our most intelligent and respectable townsmen.

SPIRIT OF THE JOURNALS.

FRANCE—UNITED STATES. (FROM THE TIMES.) The Speech of Louis Philippe, delivered on Tuesday last, forms a curious, and not unexpected, contrast to that of Mr. President Jackson.

rather than an open, system of Government, could we suppose that the King of the French and his Ministers were capable of preferring truth to magnanimity; but what other interest or purpose could be promoted by it we have yet to learn; and even to the shallow game of mystification it cannot be long made subservient.

the French Throne enabled him to search for a larger scale than he had ever before attempted. His whole reign has been a series of subtleties, manoeuvres, and evasions, hitherto successful. With a person so elaborately ruse, it is difficult to decide what may have been the real intention towards the United States; but sufficient appears to have been brought home to King Louis Philippe and his Ministers by general Jackson on the score of studied delays and unexecuted promises, to convince the most candid that more was meditated throughout their diplomatic intercourse with the Jackson Government, on the subject of this insolvency than met the public eye or ear.

IRISH CABINS AND THEIR COMFORTS. In such a world, as there is, and where men find happiness in the greatest of freedom.

Cabins and comforts generally are not synonymous but, that there are comforts, I will endeavour to prove. Comforts far above the petty wants and trivial inconveniences of the more civilized; more solid and lasting in their duration, in linking the great chain of humanity amicably together in the actual and enviable enjoyment of the poor Irish peasant, destitute and deplorable as they appear.

A wish to see the bye-ways, as well as high ways led us on a short excursion across the country, out of the direct line of road, much to the annoyance of a fine spirited horse, who did not like to be put out of his regular trot. Quixotic, and given to rest up at the shadows of windmills by the roadside and the holiday attire of the Dulcinea of the villages. He was attached to light fashionable outside car, liable to much detention and dislocation from the positive want of a Highness among the bye-ways.

do not pretend to condemn an affection for the species, but to wish to see the bye-ways, as well as high ways led us on a short excursion across the country, out of the direct line of road, much to the annoyance of a fine spirited horse, who did not like to be put out of his regular trot. Quixotic, and given to rest up at the shadows of windmills by the roadside and the holiday attire of the Dulcinea of the villages.

Now, whether sailors rise by the wind on shore, at sea, or whether they are determined to find the land, as well as the latitude on the open road, as on ocean, is not yet quite clear, but certain it is, that the chances of hydrophobia from these parts of man and in terror of the typhannous suffering from the petration of a perpetual barking dog.

It is not a free agent there, yet his style well-structured, and his food warmly and regularly provided. In Ireland, a pig has a gentleman's life of it. It is treated as one of the family, and is "monarch of the surveys."
