

PROOF OF IRISH STOCKS—Treasury

Table with columns for Stock, Government, and various financial instruments. Includes items like 'Stock, 31 per cent', 'Government, 31 per cent', etc.

LAST PRICE OF IRISH SHARES

Table listing various Irish shares and their prices. Columns include 'Share', 'Price', and 'Dividend'.

The Waterford Chronicle

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1836.

MR. S. CRAWFORD—THE TITHE BILL.

We find in the papers, a report of a public meeting, held in Duleek, on Sunday last, for the purpose of organizing the Justice Rent, and promoting the registry in the county Meath. It will be recollected that this county is one where the Liberal interest is paramount, and where Mr. O'Connell's influence is unbounded. Of this the electors gave abundant proof at the late elections, when they chose Mr. Morgan O'Connell for their representative, notwithstanding that Lord Killinstown was his opponent, having, of course, the great weight of the Frugal interest on his side. On all public occasions they have manifested a singular spirit of patriotism and independence, and the opinions of such a county may justly be deemed a fair index of national feeling on a great public question. At the meeting referred to above, there appear to have been collected about 2,000 people. At such a time, there were, necessarily, strong observations upon that engrossing subject of discontent, the tithe impost; and it was with a small exception we find that at the present period, and in such a place, there was but one prevailing universal sentiment displayed. The speakers in their several speeches, and the assent of a multitude in their applause, demanded the total and unqualified abolition. The mention of Mr. Crawford's name was received with loud cheers, nor was there any appearance of dissent to the principle of total abolition of which he has made himself the distinguished champion. The meeting, we are told, separated, after giving three cheers for O'Connell, three cheers for Sharrman Crawford, and three cheers for Old Ireland. It is by such evidence as that which the men of Meath here displayed that Mr. O'Connell, the leader and representative of the Irish people, will best ascertain the course which it is expected he will pursue upon this momentous question. The popularity which now invests Mr. Crawford is not to be attributed to any cause save the part he has taken on the one engrossing grievance, the total extinction of which can alone give satisfaction or tranquillity to the nation. Personally, Mr. Crawford, though always looked upon as an honest Irishman, is of no political magnitude, nor is he, nor will he, be an acknowledged leader of the people. We say this, because our enemies have endeavoured to make a discussion appear a quarrel, and under the pretext of applauding Mr. Crawford, would fain lessen the influence of Mr. O'Connell. This they never can, and never shall do. Mr. O'Connell's error of judgment in stating that the Ministerial Tithes Bill would satisfy this country, has, we feel confident, been corrected ere now, and we should heartily wish that the honest straight-forward course adopted by the people of Meath, would be universally imitated in every county, thereby strengthening Mr. O'Connell in the course which he will, no doubt, feel it his duty to pursue in the ensuing session. We look upon Mr. O'Connell as the advocate and representative of a nation's wishes, and how is it possible that he can be so effectually, unless our wants and wishes be made known publicly.

In the Waterford Freeman we find the following letter from the Rev. Mr. Sheehan, of this city, written to the editor, in consequence of observations made by Mr. Eneas Macdonnell upon a communication that appeared from a London correspondent. At the time of Mr. Sheehan's examination before the committee "the pious Eneas" was not thoroughly known to the public, and we agree with our Waterford contemporary in the compliment he pays to the Rev. gentleman's discrimination:—

Waterford, November 12, 1836. Dear Sir—I owe you many apologies for having allowed so long time to elapse without replying to you of the 5th instant. The facts, I was at the moment of writing very busily engaged in removing my furniture from one house to another, and having had to do with reading either myself or the paper which accompanied it, in all probability I should never have had any attention engaged by it, if your paper of yesterday containing Mr. Eneas Macdonnell's had not recalled it to my recollection. I have the great pleasure to communicate with regard to your London Correspondent information he gave you was correct. After I had undergone the examination before the committee, I had undergone the same, I presume, with his. He quoted to me some authorities among Catholics in opposition to my opinions, and amongst those he put forward the authority of Mr. E. Macdonnell. He endeavoured to persuade me that by stating to the committee that Mr. Macdonnell must be in possession of the full confidence of the Catholics, as he was at one time the accredited agent of the Irish Catholics from the fact of his having been their agent in London, for Mr. O'Connell, the author of that appointment, declared, he was sent to London to prevent him from causing division at home. When I gave the reply, Mr. O'Donnell, interposed, and by the unanimous consent of the committee it was agreed that the portion of the evidence should be expunged as irrelevant. When the short-hand writer had extended his notes of my evidence, I was furnished with a full report of it, and I found that it contained what I had said of Mr. M.D.'s appointment, and what the committee had agreed should be expunged, I instantly drew the pen across the evidence before the committee, and I am sure that I did not do so, because it would have been a dishonourable of me to allow the evidence to be made public, and to the benefit of my recollection, it is what occurred in but as I found that his opinion was to Mr. M.D. to gratify the committee. I had accordingly to the committee, and I perfectly justified in the London papers. I felt myself particularly as Mr. O'Connell had so publicly and in a declaration remains uncorrected.

Believe me to be, dear Sir, respectfully yours JOHN SHEEHAN.

Nicholas Loftus, Esq. IRISH COLONY SURRENDERS—Several changes and new appointments have taken place in the department, viz. Mr. Langley to Acton, Mr. St. Leger to Sligo, Mr. Dubourdieux to Leitrim, Mr. Yeats to Kildare, Mr. Fitz to

THE CHURCH NOT OF IRELAND.

The falsehoods and shameless lies which have been heaped upon the creed of the Irish people by the most profligate gang of foul-mouthed maligners that ever disgraced a civilized community, must—if almost superhuman forbearance be not exercised by the Catholic Clergy—produce a violent and fearful reaction. We speak not now of the effects which the diabolical efforts of the McGhees and the O'Sullivan's to create a religious war, could produce, did these fanatical and well-paid incendiaries stand alone. The Irish people are too intelligent to regard the puny efforts of these vipers to late, well knowing that in the moral as the physical world, venomous reptiles are part of the creation. But the case is far different when they behold these infernal tools supported and urged forward, in their ungodly crusade, by the endowed clergy and noted dignitaries of the establishment. When they see, leading on the fanatical host, the rectors and the bishops of the church, which by the aid of foreign bayonets, has supplanted their own—when they observe these gorged minions of an ascendancy that has been planted, and supported, and nourished by blood, not content with grasping, for themselves, the wealth, the produce, and the fatness of the land, now coming forward to defend the cherished creed of those upon whose spoils they are fattening—when they see and feel all this, they could not be men if their blood were not stirred within them, and, if possessing, as they do, ample means of retaliation, they did not feel a wish to exercise their power. Whilst we admit that this is the natural course, for men provoked beyond all endurance to pursue, we would, in the strongest and most energetic manner deprecate its adoption. Should the Catholic Clergy and the leaders of the people meet the enemy on his own ground, and in their own stead a revivification of the religious feelings of the community will be excited, the minds of men will be directed from the one thing necessary, and the existence of the accused thing—titles—be protracted to an indefinite period. This is what our malignant enemies wish; this would provide the consummation of their triumph, and sure we are that our countrymen are too wise to afford to their persecutors and ungodly exploiters. No, let them attack us from the quarter in which he is most vulnerable; let them make war, open, unmitigated, irreconcilable war, war to the death, against titles. By doing this they will exact from the ascendancy faction the severest vengeance, and inflict upon them the deepest wound. The religious crusade set on foot by them, has been with a view of diverting public attention from their ill-gotten hoards, they hoped it might act as a drag to draw off the people's eyes, and prevent them from tracking the beast of prey to his lair. Doubtless they will find themselves mistaken, the people will keep never mind their stupid and atrocious calumnies, they will learn to laugh them and their abettors to scorn. We would strongly urge the calling together of simultaneous meetings for the purpose of petitioning for the total unqualified abolition of titles. This might be done without subjecting the people to inconvenience, by appointing the various chapels as the places of meeting, and the time to be immediately after morning prayer. This machinery worked well for the cause of Emancipation, and it judiciously handled, would do so again. The future destiny of Ireland now rests with her indignant nation. Let them shake off all apathy, give to the winds all minor differences, inundate the House of Commons with petitions, express their demand in bold uncompromising language—let them do this, and the issue of agriculture and the pest of religion, must, ere long, be uprooted from the land for ever. When this is once accomplished, in addition to the other benefits to be derived, we shall be freed from the hissing of these poisonous vipers, and for the first time enjoy the blessings of religious peace.

MR. O'CONNELL AND MR. S. CRAWFORD.

The Sun comments upon the letter of Mr. Sharrman Crawford to Lord Concurry, at some length. We cannot fully agree in the remarks of the London journal, which censures Mr. Crawford, for demanding from Mr. O'Connell, a distinct declaration of the principles on which reformers are to act. It quotes the following passage from the letter of the member for Dundak:— "Your Lordship's object is one of Reformers. In this object I cordially join you. I will give up all allusions to the past; let us open a new leaf and prepare for the future—must look to Mr. O'Connell, as the leader, to assert the rights of Ireland, but, in that capacity, I do not see a distinct declaration of the principles on which he is to act, that the accordance of those who are to act with him shall be founded on the conviction of reason, and not on the dictation of authority. There are questions to be debated—rationally affecting the particular interests of Ireland; and now that we should understand a definitive course of action on these questions."

If for a moment we imagined that Mr. Crawford was actuated by the contemptible envy of Mr. O'Connell's leadership, which has stimulated so many rascally patriots, to outbid him in declarations of popular principles, we should not waste a word in ministering to his ambition. But Mr. Crawford is not one of these men. He possesses as much honesty and more determination of character than the majority of the liberal members, and his course of conduct springs from what he considers, and we likewise think, to be their duty, to the public duty. He is justly, therefore, deserving of a distinct declaration of the principles upon which, and his fellow labourers, the Irish Reformers, are to act. The Sun obscures the question when it says, "The principle of Mr. O'Connell's future policy must preclude the possibility of his giving such explicit declarations as Mr. Sharrman Crawford seeks, inasmuch as that policy is subject to the entire contrivance of circumstances." The means of working out a principle may be changed or modified, but we do not understand how the principle itself can be subject to alteration. Mr. Crawford does not ask what line of policy is to be pursued in the different details of the ensuing session, but he requires (and the question of titles) to be applied to titles what measure of Reform the Irish Members are to demand from the British Senate. The Sun goes on to remark:— "We confess we cannot fully comprehend that Mr. Sharrman Crawford means by claiming from Mr. O'Connell a more distinct declaration of the principles upon which the Irish Reformers are to act, than what has already been given. The hundred times, publicly and privately, by the Hon. and Learned Member for Kilkenny, Mr. O'Connell has declared and that the guiding principle of his Parliamentary labours shall be the obtaining of justice—real, substantial justice—for the institution of that justice, when to obtain more is out of his power, that he will prefer a substantial and inferior justice, to a noisy discussion upon abstract principles for the mere purpose of recording the opinions of a minority upon them."

The Sun ought to know that Mr. Sharrman Crawford complained, not because Mr. O'Connell sought for an bill of last session, but because the Irish title bill was given to understand, that the bill was conclusive and unchangeable. Mr. Crawford declares that he would be glad to receive five shillings, or even two shillings and find it but, he, in common with the people of Ireland, would not consent to a receipt in full for the remainder, or to forego all subsequent legislation on the subject. The bill which was to, perpetuate the title sys-

RIGHT REV. DR. FLEMING.

A full report of the proceedings of the Dinner to Dr. Fleming in Dublin, shall appear in our next.

IVERK FARMING SOCIETY.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.) Saturday (the 15th inst.) the annual Cattle Show took place at Inistiogue, and the various premiums for the best stock, neatest cottages, best crops of various descriptions, were distributed to the successful competitors. Our President, W. F. Tighe, Esq., assisted by his truly amiable coadjutor, Lady Louisa, distributed the prizes, and the Members of the Society sat down to an excellent and plentiful dinner, provided by Mr. J. Cotterell, of Inistiogue. Considering that the society is only in its infancy, the dinner was well attended. Mr. Tighe presided. Mr. T. Innes, the Secretary, acted as Vice President. On the other side of the chair sat Col. Howard, M.P. for Wicklow, the Rev. Dr. Pack, rector of Inistiogue, Messrs. Power, of Kildare, Roberts, Greene, Bolger, Pack, Allen, &c., &c., and many other gentlemen of the surrounding district, who were highly gratified at the opportunity of being present at the annual meeting of the society, and the following, amongst many others, were given, and enthusiastically received. "The President of the Society, W. F. Tighe, Esq., 'Law and let us, nine times nine,' the strangers who honoured the society by their presence, 'Col. Howard returned thanks.' 'Success to the members of the society, in returning thanks, Mr. Roberts, giving account of the improvements that have already taken place since the formation of the society, particularly in drill husbandry, and concluded by proposing the health of 'Lady Louisa Tighe, a lady who has done honour to the country that gave her birth, and a lady who has done honour to the society that she has so graciously presided over.' 'God speed the Plough.' 'Success to the Iverk Farming Society, and many other toasts were drunk, and the company separated at 10 o'clock, highly delighted with the entertainment of the evening. Many challenges for the ensuing year, for crops and stocks, were proposed and accepted. It must be regretted that the prosperity of the country at large, has not been so successful, and that the improvements have already taken place, entirely owing to the establishment of the society: at present it is only in its infancy. Next year, I hope to be able to give you a still more favourable account; the foregoing is but a rough sketch of the proceedings. J.

LOSS OF THE RED ROVER STEAM PACKET.

The following particulars of the loss of the Red Rover steam packet are given in the London Mail of yesterday:—The Magnet belongs to the General Steam Navigation Company, on the Margate station; and the Red Rover is the property of the Herne Bay Company, on the Gravesend and Herne Bay station. The Red Rover left London Bridge on Monday morning, with twenty passengers, for Herne Bay and Margate; and the Magnet left Margate for London at the same hour with 200 passengers. In consequence of the thick fog on board the Red Rover, and before she reached the anchorage of two or three vessels, but without doing them any material damage. The fog increased in the afternoon as she approached the Nore, and about a mile below the floating light she met the Magnet, which was coming up with the tide at half speed. The people on board the two vessels were unconscious of danger nearly until the two vessels were abreast of each other, when the collision took place, Captain Jones, of the Magnet, whose intrepid conduct and presence of mind are spoken of in terms of great praise by all parties, threw out a rope by which the Red Rover was held on, and the crew and passengers rushed on board the Magnet. The crew looked round with anxiety to ascertain if the people on board the Red Rover were safe, and were about to make an attempt to reach the Magenta, when the Red Rover, but with a few minutes' delay, was able to get back to the anchorage, and the collision took place, and the Red Rover was sunk, and the Magnet was damaged. The escape of several truly merciful persons on the side which was damaged was a truly merciful escape, and the passengers were rescued and landed in all directions, and it was time before the captain and steward succeeded in allaying their fears. As soon as something like order was restored, Captain Jones assured his passengers that he would proceed to London at once, but he was very properly deterred on hearing of the loss of the Red Rover, and he was distant only a few miles, when the two steamers were safely landed at that place within an hour afterwards. The Magnet left Sheerness, on Friday, yesterday morning at nine o'clock, and arrived at Fresh Water about half-past one. Her arrival was welcomed with great satisfaction by the passengers; indeed a report was very prevalent during the morning that the two steamers had gone down with every soul on board. We are enabled to state that no person received the least bodily injury. When the passengers were landed at Sheerness, the Port Admiral Fleming manifested great consideration and courtesy. He manned his gig, and he would accommodate the passengers, as many as he could, and he accompanied them to Chatham. Captain A. Reid, who has been in command of the Red Rover for two years, has been for several days confined to his bed, and his place was supplied by the mate, who lately commanded the George Canning, Greenwich steamer. Captain Jones is well known as the oldest and most experienced steam packet master on the river, and no blame whatever is attached to either party, and the occurrence is attributable solely to the density of the fog. The Red Rover lies in the fairway of navigation in about 16 feet water, and a notice to that effect was yesterday issued by the Trinity-house, which has ordered a buoy to be placed near it.

Yesterday afternoon several directors and others being placed by the Herne Bay Steam Packet Company, waited on the Lords of the Admiralty for the assistance of ladders and tackle to raise the Red Rover; and their request was, we understand, immediately complied with. It is expected that the vessel will be got up in the course of a few days, should the weather prove moderate.

PORT NEWS—PASSENGER, OCTOBER 21.

- 19th—Oak, Humber, Liverpool to Portsmouth, coals; Nora Creina, (steamer) Bailey, Bristol; Fortified Nichols, Newport to Ross, coals; Trio, Connor, ditto; Enterprise, Green, Portsmouth, ballast. 20th—Brighton, Green, Shoreham, ballast; Tryphena, Harding, Liverpool, salt; Elizabetha, Fawcett, Weymouth, ballast; St. Patrick, (steamer) Gosson, Liverpool. Put back, 20th—Friends, Burnard; Helen, Weymouth, Gage, Paoli; Oak, Hough, Rock, Pilot; Caroline, Wexford. 21st—Providence, Horwood, Newport, coals. 22nd—St. John's Newport, Nichols, Quebec to Dublin, dears; Agnes, Osborne, Ross to Liverpool, flour; Diadem, Harcourt, Nassau to London, mallogany; Lizzy, Phillips, Ross to Gloucester, barley; Friends, Burnard, Gloucester, grain and flour; Talbot, Howe, Falmouth, flour; Flora, Paoli, London, provisions; Confidence, Anxel, ditto, ditto; Colonel, Davies, ditto, ditto; Caroline, Watters, Shoreham, oats; Helen, Wilson, London, ditto; David Walter, Symington, Cardiff, flour; Active, Kenzie, Kirkwall to Cork, (steamer) Gage, Poole, Southampton, oats; Gipsy, (steamer) Coppell, Liverpool; Hippocampus, Davies, Cardiff, flour.

In consequence of the death of William Hughes, Esq., a vacancy has occurred in the Waterford Quay Corporation, and Mr. Seymour has been appointed to fill the vacancy.

RIGHT REV. DR. FLEMING.

A full report of the proceedings of the Dinner to Dr. Fleming in Dublin, shall appear in our next.

IVERK FARMING SOCIETY.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.) Saturday (the 15th inst.) the annual Cattle Show took place at Inistiogue, and the various premiums for the best stock, neatest cottages, best crops of various descriptions, were distributed to the successful competitors. Our President, W. F. Tighe, Esq., assisted by his truly amiable coadjutor, Lady Louisa, distributed the prizes, and the Members of the Society sat down to an excellent and plentiful dinner, provided by Mr. J. Cotterell, of Inistiogue. Considering that the society is only in its infancy, the dinner was well attended. Mr. Tighe presided. Mr. T. Innes, the Secretary, acted as Vice President. On the other side of the chair sat Col. Howard, M.P. for Wicklow, the Rev. Dr. Pack, rector of Inistiogue, Messrs. Power, of Kildare, Roberts, Greene, Bolger, Pack, Allen, &c., &c., and many other gentlemen of the surrounding district, who were highly gratified at the opportunity of being present at the annual meeting of the society, and the following, amongst many others, were given, and enthusiastically received. "The President of the Society, W. F. Tighe, Esq., 'Law and let us, nine times nine,' the strangers who honoured the society by their presence, 'Col. Howard returned thanks.' 'Success to the members of the society, in returning thanks, Mr. Roberts, giving account of the improvements that have already taken place since the formation of the society, particularly in drill husbandry, and concluded by proposing the health of 'Lady Louisa Tighe, a lady who has done honour to the country that gave her birth, and a lady who has done honour to the society that she has so graciously presided over.' 'God speed the Plough.' 'Success to the Iverk Farming Society, and many other toasts were drunk, and the company separated at 10 o'clock, highly delighted with the entertainment of the evening. Many challenges for the ensuing year, for crops and stocks, were proposed and accepted. It must be regretted that the prosperity of the country at large, has not been so successful, and that the improvements have already taken place, entirely owing to the establishment of the society: at present it is only in its infancy. Next year, I hope to be able to give you a still more favourable account; the foregoing is but a rough sketch of the proceedings. J.

LOSS OF THE RED ROVER STEAM PACKET.

The following particulars of the loss of the Red Rover steam packet are given in the London Mail of yesterday:—The Magnet belongs to the General Steam Navigation Company, on the Margate station; and the Red Rover is the property of the Herne Bay Company, on the Gravesend and Herne Bay station. The Red Rover left London Bridge on Monday morning, with twenty passengers, for Herne Bay and Margate; and the Magnet left Margate for London at the same hour with 200 passengers. In consequence of the thick fog on board the Red Rover, and before she reached the anchorage of two or three vessels, but without doing them any material damage. The fog increased in the afternoon as she approached the Nore, and about a mile below the floating light she met the Magnet, which was coming up with the tide at half speed. The people on board the two vessels were unconscious of danger nearly until the two vessels were abreast of each other, when the collision took place, Captain Jones, of the Magnet, whose intrepid conduct and presence of mind are spoken of in terms of great praise by all parties, threw out a rope by which the Red Rover was held on, and the crew and passengers rushed on board the Magnet. The crew looked round with anxiety to ascertain if the people on board the Red Rover were safe, and were about to make an attempt to reach the Magenta, when the Red Rover, but with a few minutes' delay, was able to get back to the anchorage, and the collision took place, and the Red Rover was sunk, and the Magnet was damaged. The escape of several truly merciful persons on the side which was damaged was a truly merciful escape, and the passengers were rescued and landed in all directions, and it was time before the captain and steward succeeded in allaying their fears. As soon as something like order was restored, Captain Jones assured his passengers that he would proceed to London at once, but he was very properly deterred on hearing of the loss of the Red Rover, and he was distant only a few miles, when the two steamers were safely landed at that place within an hour afterwards. The Magnet left Sheerness, on Friday, yesterday morning at nine o'clock, and arrived at Fresh Water about half-past one. Her arrival was welcomed with great satisfaction by the passengers; indeed a report was very prevalent during the morning that the two steamers had gone down with every soul on board. We are enabled to state that no person received the least bodily injury. When the passengers were landed at Sheerness, the Port Admiral Fleming manifested great consideration and courtesy. He manned his gig, and he would accommodate the passengers, as many as he could, and he accompanied them to Chatham. Captain A. Reid, who has been in command of the Red Rover for two years, has been for several days confined to his bed, and his place was supplied by the mate, who lately commanded the George Canning, Greenwich steamer. Captain Jones is well known as the oldest and most experienced steam packet master on the river, and no blame whatever is attached to either party, and the occurrence is attributable solely to the density of the fog. The Red Rover lies in the fairway of navigation in about 16 feet water, and a notice to that effect was yesterday issued by the Trinity-house, which has ordered a buoy to be placed near it.

Yesterday afternoon several directors and others being placed by the Herne Bay Steam Packet Company, waited on the Lords of the Admiralty for the assistance of ladders and tackle to raise the Red Rover; and their request was, we understand, immediately complied with. It is expected that the vessel will be got up in the course of a few days, should the weather prove moderate.

PORT NEWS—PASSENGER, OCTOBER 21.

- 19th—Oak, Humber, Liverpool to Portsmouth, coals; Nora Creina, (steamer) Bailey, Bristol; Fortified Nichols, Newport to Ross, coals; Trio, Connor, ditto; Enterprise, Green, Portsmouth, ballast. 20th—Brighton, Green, Shoreham, ballast; Tryphena, Harding, Liverpool, salt; Elizabetha, Fawcett, Weymouth, ballast; St. Patrick, (steamer) Gosson, Liverpool. Put back, 20th—Friends, Burnard; Helen, Weymouth, Gage, Paoli; Oak, Hough, Rock, Pilot; Caroline, Wexford. 21st—Providence, Horwood, Newport, coals. 22nd—St. John's Newport, Nichols, Quebec to Dublin, dears; Agnes, Osborne, Ross to Liverpool, flour; Diadem, Harcourt, Nassau to London, mallogany; Lizzy, Phillips, Ross to Gloucester, barley; Friends, Burnard, Gloucester, grain and flour; Talbot, Howe, Falmouth, flour; Flora, Paoli, London, provisions; Confidence, Anxel, ditto, ditto; Colonel, Davies, ditto, ditto; Caroline, Watters, Shoreham, oats; Helen, Wilson, London, ditto; David Walter, Symington, Cardiff, flour; Active, Kenzie, Kirkwall to Cork, (steamer) Gage, Poole, Southampton, oats; Gipsy, (steamer) Coppell, Liverpool; Hippocampus, Davies, Cardiff, flour.

In consequence of the death of William Hughes, Esq., a vacancy has occurred in the Waterford Quay Corporation, and Mr. Seymour has been appointed to fill the vacancy.

RIGHT REV. DR. FLEMING.

A full report of the proceedings of the Dinner to Dr. Fleming in Dublin, shall appear in our next.

IVERK FARMING SOCIETY.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.) Saturday (the 15th inst.) the annual Cattle Show took place at Inistiogue, and the various premiums for the best stock, neatest cottages, best crops of various descriptions, were distributed to the successful competitors. Our President, W. F. Tighe, Esq., assisted by his truly amiable coadjutor, Lady Louisa, distributed the prizes, and the Members of the Society sat down to an excellent and plentiful dinner, provided by Mr. J. Cotterell, of Inistiogue. Considering that the society is only in its infancy, the dinner was well attended. Mr. Tighe presided. Mr. T. Innes, the Secretary, acted as Vice President. On the other side of the chair sat Col. Howard, M.P. for Wicklow, the Rev. Dr. Pack, rector of Inistiogue, Messrs. Power, of Kildare, Roberts, Greene, Bolger, Pack, Allen, &c., &c., and many other gentlemen of the surrounding district, who were highly gratified at the opportunity of being present at the annual meeting of the society, and the following, amongst many others, were given, and enthusiastically received. "The President of the Society, W. F. Tighe, Esq., 'Law and let us, nine times nine,' the strangers who honoured the society by their presence, 'Col. Howard returned thanks.' 'Success to the members of the society, in returning thanks, Mr. Roberts, giving account of the improvements that have already taken place since the formation of the society, particularly in drill husbandry, and concluded by proposing the health of 'Lady Louisa Tighe, a lady who has done honour to the country that gave her birth, and a lady who has done honour to the society that she has so graciously presided over.' 'God speed the Plough.' 'Success to the Iverk Farming Society, and many other toasts were drunk, and the company separated at 10 o'clock, highly delighted with the entertainment of the evening. Many challenges for the ensuing year, for crops and stocks, were proposed and accepted. It must be regretted that the prosperity of the country at large, has not been so successful, and that the improvements have already taken place, entirely owing to the establishment of the society: at present it is only in its infancy. Next year, I hope to be able to give you a still more favourable account; the foregoing is but a rough sketch of the proceedings. J.

LOSS OF THE RED ROVER STEAM PACKET.

The following particulars of the loss of the Red Rover steam packet are given in the London Mail of yesterday:—The Magnet belongs to the General Steam Navigation Company, on the Margate station; and the Red Rover is the property of the Herne Bay Company, on the Gravesend and Herne Bay station. The Red Rover left London Bridge on Monday morning, with twenty passengers, for Herne Bay and Margate; and the Magnet left Margate for London at the same hour with 200 passengers. In consequence of the thick fog on board the Red Rover, and before she reached the anchorage of two or three vessels, but without doing them any material damage. The fog increased in the afternoon as she approached the Nore, and about a mile below the floating light she met the Magnet, which was coming up with the tide at half speed. The people on board the two vessels were unconscious of danger nearly until the two vessels were abreast of each other, when the collision took place, Captain Jones, of the Magnet, whose intrepid conduct and presence of mind are spoken of in terms of great praise by all parties, threw out a rope by which the Red Rover was held on, and the crew and passengers rushed on board the Magnet. The crew looked round with anxiety to ascertain if the people on board the Red Rover were safe, and were about to make an attempt to reach the Magenta, when the Red Rover, but with a few minutes' delay, was able to get back to the anchorage, and the collision took place, and the Red Rover was sunk, and the Magnet was damaged. The escape of several truly merciful persons on the side which was damaged was a truly merciful escape, and the passengers were rescued and landed in all directions, and it was time before the captain and steward succeeded in allaying their fears. As soon as something like order was restored, Captain Jones assured his passengers that he would proceed to London at once, but he was very properly deterred on hearing of the loss of the Red Rover, and he was distant only a few miles, when the two steamers were safely landed at that place within an hour afterwards. The Magnet left Sheerness, on Friday, yesterday morning at nine o'clock, and arrived at Fresh Water about half-past one. Her arrival was welcomed with great satisfaction by the passengers; indeed a report was very prevalent during the morning that the two steamers had gone down with every soul on board. We are enabled to state that no person received the least bodily injury. When the passengers were landed at Sheerness, the Port Admiral Fleming manifested great consideration and courtesy. He manned his gig, and he would accommodate the passengers, as many as he could, and he accompanied them to Chatham. Captain A. Reid, who has been in command of the Red Rover for two years, has been for several days confined to his bed, and his place was supplied by the mate, who lately commanded the George Canning, Greenwich steamer. Captain Jones is well known as the oldest and most experienced steam packet master on the river, and no blame whatever is attached to either party, and the occurrence is attributable solely to the density of the fog. The Red Rover lies in the fairway of navigation in about 16 feet water, and a notice to that effect was yesterday issued by the Trinity-house, which has ordered a buoy to be placed near it.

Yesterday afternoon several directors and others being placed by the Herne Bay Steam Packet Company, waited on the Lords of the Admiralty for the assistance of ladders and tackle to raise the Red Rover; and their request was, we understand, immediately complied with. It is expected that the vessel will be got up in the course of a few days, should the weather prove moderate.

PORT NEWS—PASSENGER, OCTOBER 21.

- 19th—Oak, Humber, Liverpool to Portsmouth, coals; Nora Creina, (steamer) Bailey, Bristol; Fortified Nichols, Newport to Ross, coals; Trio, Connor, ditto; Enterprise, Green, Portsmouth, ballast. 20th—Brighton, Green, Shoreham, ballast; Tryphena, Harding, Liverpool, salt; Elizabetha, Fawcett, Weymouth, ballast; St. Patrick, (steamer) Gosson, Liverpool. Put back, 20th—Friends, Burnard; Helen, Weymouth, Gage, Paoli; Oak, Hough, Rock, Pilot; Caroline, Wexford. 21st—Providence, Horwood, Newport, coals. 22nd—St. John's Newport, Nichols, Quebec to Dublin, dears; Agnes, Osborne, Ross to Liverpool, flour; Diadem, Harcourt, Nassau to London, mallogany; Lizzy, Phillips, Ross to Gloucester, barley; Friends, Burnard, Gloucester, grain and flour; Talbot, Howe, Falmouth, flour; Flora, Paoli, London, provisions; Confidence, Anxel, ditto, ditto; Colonel, Davies, ditto, ditto; Caroline, Watters, Shoreham, oats; Helen, Wilson, London, ditto; David Walter, Symington, Cardiff, flour; Active, Kenzie, Kirkwall to Cork, (steamer) Gage, Poole, Southampton, oats; Gipsy, (steamer) Coppell, Liverpool; Hippocampus, Davies, Cardiff, flour.

In consequence of the death of William Hughes, Esq., a vacancy has occurred in the Waterford Quay Corporation, and Mr. Seymour has been appointed to fill the vacancy.

RIGHT REV. DR. FLEMING.

A full report of the proceedings of the Dinner to Dr. Fleming in Dublin, shall appear in our next.

IVERK FARMING SOCIETY.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.) Saturday (the 15th inst.) the annual Cattle Show took place at Inistiogue, and the various premiums for the best stock, neatest cottages, best crops of various descriptions, were distributed to the successful competitors. Our President, W. F. Tighe, Esq., assisted by his truly amiable coadjutor, Lady Louisa, distributed the prizes, and the Members of the Society sat down to an excellent and plentiful dinner, provided by Mr. J. Cotterell, of Inistiogue. Considering that the society is only in its infancy, the dinner was well attended. Mr. Tighe presided. Mr. T. Innes, the Secretary, acted as Vice President. On the other side of the chair sat Col. Howard, M.P. for Wicklow, the Rev. Dr. Pack, rector of Inistiogue, Messrs. Power, of Kildare, Roberts, Greene, Bolger, Pack, Allen, &c., &c., and many other gentlemen of the surrounding district, who were highly gratified at the opportunity of being present at the annual meeting of the society, and the following, amongst many others, were given, and enthusiastically received. "The President of the Society, W. F. Tighe, Esq., 'Law and let us, nine times nine,' the strangers who honoured the society by their presence, 'Col. Howard returned thanks.' 'Success to the members of the society, in returning thanks, Mr. Roberts, giving account of the improvements that have already taken place since the formation of the society, particularly in drill husbandry, and concluded by proposing the health of 'Lady Louisa Tighe, a lady who has done honour to the country that gave her birth, and a lady who has done honour to the society that she has so graciously presided over.' 'God speed the Plough.' 'Success to the Iverk Farming Society, and many other toasts were drunk, and the company separated at 10 o'clock, highly delighted with the entertainment of the evening. Many challenges for the ensuing year, for crops and stocks, were proposed and accepted. It must be regretted that the prosperity of the country at large, has not been so successful, and that the improvements have already taken place, entirely owing to the establishment of the society: at present it is only in its infancy. Next year, I hope to be able to give you a still more favourable account; the foregoing is but a rough sketch of the proceedings. J.

LOSS OF THE RED ROVER STEAM PACKET.

The following particulars of the loss of the Red Rover steam packet are given in the London Mail of yesterday:—The Magnet belongs to the General Steam Navigation Company, on the Margate station; and the Red Rover is the property of the Herne Bay Company, on the Gravesend and Herne Bay station. The Red Rover left London Bridge on Monday morning, with twenty passengers, for Herne Bay and Margate; and the Magnet left Margate for London at the same hour with 200 passengers. In consequence of the thick fog on board the Red Rover, and before she reached the anchorage of two or three vessels, but without doing them any material damage. The fog increased in the afternoon as she approached the Nore, and about a mile below the floating light she met the Magnet, which was coming up with the tide at half speed. The people on board the two vessels were unconscious of danger nearly until the two vessels were abreast of each other, when the collision took place, Captain Jones, of the Magnet, whose intrepid conduct and presence of mind are spoken of in terms of great praise by all parties, threw out a rope by which the Red Rover was held on, and the crew and passengers rushed on board the Magnet. The crew looked round with anxiety to ascertain if the people on board the Red Rover were safe, and were about to make an attempt to reach the Magenta, when the Red Rover, but with a few minutes' delay, was able to get back to the anchorage, and the collision took place, and the Red Rover was sunk, and the Magnet was damaged. The escape of several truly merciful persons on the side which was damaged was a truly merciful escape, and the passengers were rescued and landed in all directions, and it was time before the captain and steward succeeded in allaying their fears. As soon as something like order was restored, Captain Jones assured his passengers that he would proceed to London at once, but he was very properly deterred on hearing of the loss of the Red Rover, and he was distant only a few miles, when the two steamers were safely landed at that place within an hour afterwards. The Magnet left Sheerness, on Friday, yesterday morning at nine o'clock, and arrived at Fresh Water about half-past one. Her arrival was welcomed with great satisfaction by the passengers; indeed a report was very prevalent during the morning that the two steamers had gone down with every soul on board. We are enabled to state that no person received the least bodily injury. When the passengers were landed at Sheerness, the Port Admiral Fleming manifested great consideration and courtesy. He manned his gig, and he would accommodate the passengers, as many as he could, and he accompanied them to Chatham. Captain A. Reid, who has been in command of the Red Rover for two years, has been for several days confined to his bed, and his place was supplied by the mate, who lately commanded the George Canning, Greenwich steamer. Captain Jones is well known as the oldest and most experienced steam packet master on the river, and no blame whatever is attached to either party, and the occurrence is attributable solely to the density of the fog. The Red Rover lies in the fairway of navigation in about 16 feet water, and a notice to that effect was yesterday issued by the Trinity-house, which has ordered a buoy to be placed near it.

Yesterday afternoon several directors and others being placed by the Herne Bay Steam Packet Company, waited on the Lords of the Admiralty for the assistance of ladders and tackle to raise the Red Rover; and their request was, we understand, immediately complied with. It is expected that the vessel will be got up in the course of a few days, should the weather prove moderate.

PORT NEWS—PASSENGER, OCTOBER 21.

- 19th—Oak, Humber, Liverpool to Portsmouth, coals; Nora Creina, (steamer) Bailey, Bristol; Fortified Nichols, Newport to Ross, coals; Trio, Connor, ditto; Enterprise, Green, Portsmouth, ballast. 20th—Brighton, Green, Shoreham, ballast; Tryphena, Harding, Liverpool, salt; Elizabetha, Fawcett, Weymouth, ballast; St. Patrick, (steamer) Gosson, Liverpool. Put back, 20th—Friends, Burnard; Helen, Weymouth, Gage, Paoli; Oak, Hough, Rock, Pilot; Caroline, Wexford. 21st—Providence, Horwood, Newport, coals. 22nd—St. John's Newport, Nichols, Quebec to Dublin, dears; Agnes, Osborne, Ross to Liverpool, flour; Diadem, Harcourt, Nassau to London, mallogany; Lizzy, Phillips, Ross to Gloucester, barley; Friends, Burnard, Gloucester, grain and flour; Talbot, Howe, Falmouth, flour; Flora, Paoli, London, provisions; Confidence, Anxel, ditto, ditto; Colonel, Davies, ditto, ditto; Caroline, Watters, Shoreham, oats; Helen, Wilson, London, ditto; David Walter, Symington, Cardiff, flour; Active, Kenzie, Kirkwall to Cork, (steamer) Gage, Poole, Southampton, oats; Gipsy, (steamer) Coppell, Liverpool; Hippocampus, Davies, Cardiff, flour.

In consequence of the death of William Hughes, Esq., a vacancy has occurred in the Waterford Quay Corporation, and Mr. Seymour has been appointed to fill the vacancy.

RIGHT REV. DR. FLEMING.

A full report of the proceedings of the Dinner to Dr. Fleming in Dublin, shall appear in our next.

IVERK FARMING SOCIETY.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.) Saturday (the 15th inst.) the annual Cattle Show took place at Inistiogue, and the various premiums for the best stock, neatest cottages, best crops of various descriptions, were distributed to the successful competitors. Our President, W. F. Tighe, Esq., assisted by his truly amiable coadjutor, Lady Louisa, distributed the prizes, and the Members of the Society sat down to an excellent and plentiful dinner, provided by Mr. J. Cotterell, of Inistiogue. Considering that the society is only in its infancy, the dinner was well attended. Mr. Tighe presided. Mr. T. Innes, the Secretary, acted as Vice President. On the other side of the chair sat Col. Howard, M.P. for Wicklow, the Rev. Dr. Pack,

A young man, was brought before Mr. ... in the Water-look, per- ... of Jim Crow, and singing the ...

Well, young man, what have you ... Defendant—What was in ... your Worship, and thought ...

OPINION OF LORD BYRON.

Goethe, 'tis to be consider- ... Englishman, and as a great gen- ... belonging chiefly to him as a man; ...

genius of a high order; and I have ... a poetical, properly so called, ... in him. He seizes the leading ...

He was a ragged head, the sandy hair of which, ... Mr. Dodson ain't at home, and Mr. Fogg's ...

There was such a game with Fogg here this mornin', ... the man in the brown coat, while Jack was up ...

Suppositions with respect ... in a German paper, Brunswick, ... plan for a marriage of our ...

THEATRICALS.

Keely is described in New York as 'the best low ... of the London stage.' Is Keely forgotten and ...

Mr. Fennell's Acting.—Mr. Forrest is about thirty ... stands five feet nine inches and a-half ...

THE REGISTRIES.

The accounts which we have from various parts ... of Ireland show, that the Liberals are doing the work ...

Another section for the 'aliens.' We congratulate ... the people of Dundalk upon this. Their energy at the ...

THE CLERKS' OFFICE.—In the ground-floor front ... of a dingy house, at the very furthest end of Freeman's ...

Mr. Dodson ain't at home, and Mr. Fogg's ... Mr. Dodson ain't at home, and Mr. Fogg's ...

THE CLERKS' OFFICE.—In the ground-floor front ... of a dingy house, at the very furthest end of Freeman's ...

Suppositions with respect ... in a German paper, Brunswick, ... plan for a marriage of our ...

FASHION AND VARIETIES.

Lord Marjeth, accompanied by the English Solicitor ... of Lady Dover, arrived in Kilkenny on Monday from ...

The Duke of Newcastle became the purchaser of nearly ... three-fourths of the Crown estates at Newark, sold on ...

THE CABINET SCENE OF MELBOURNE.

But for that deer-stealing 'pestilent mad dog' ... Will Shakespeare, we should never have known what ...

THE CABINET SCENE OF MELBOURNE.—Lord Melbourne ... to scene in the great airy chair of state, after lurching and ...

THE CABINET SCENE OF MELBOURNE.—Lord Melbourne ... to scene in the great airy chair of state, after lurching and ...

THE CABINET SCENE OF MELBOURNE.—Lord Melbourne ... to scene in the great airy chair of state, after lurching and ...

THE CABINET SCENE OF MELBOURNE.—Lord Melbourne ... to scene in the great airy chair of state, after lurching and ...

THE CABINET SCENE OF MELBOURNE.—Lord Melbourne ... to scene in the great airy chair of state, after lurching and ...

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

NO Financial Measure of the last half century has pro- ... duced such a revolution in the thinking and the reason- ...

NO Financial Measure of the last half century has pro- ... duced such a revolution in the thinking and the reason- ...

THE MARKETS.

WATERFORD MARKETS.—OCTOBER 21. Wheat white ... 25 6 @ 27 0 ...

WATERFORD MARKETS.—OCTOBER 21. Wheat white ... 25 6 @ 27 0 ...

WATERFORD MARKETS.—OCTOBER 21. Wheat white ... 25 6 @ 27 0 ...

WATERFORD MARKETS.—OCTOBER 21. Wheat white ... 25 6 @ 27 0 ...

WATERFORD MARKETS.—OCTOBER 21. Wheat white ... 25 6 @ 27 0 ...

WATERFORD MARKETS.—OCTOBER 21. Wheat white ... 25 6 @ 27 0 ...

THE MARKETS.

WATERFORD MARKETS.—OCTOBER 21. Wheat white ... 25 6 @ 27 0 ...

WATERFORD MARKETS.—OCTOBER 21. Wheat white ... 25 6 @ 27 0 ...

ASSIZE OF BREAD.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING THURSDAY, OCTOBER 27. White ... Ranged. Household.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING THURSDAY, OCTOBER 27. White ... Ranged. Household.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING THURSDAY, OCTOBER 27. White ... Ranged. Household.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING THURSDAY, OCTOBER 27. White ... Ranged. Household.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING THURSDAY, OCTOBER 27. White ... Ranged. Household.

FOR THE WEEK ENDING THURSDAY, OCTOBER 27. White ... Ranged. Household.

